Hope Deferred
One Billion Ounces
Meteors Are Coming
Advertising Rules

By Arthur Brisbane

Clarence Darrow says prohibition will be a thing of the past in 1933, perhaps sooner.

If hope deferred maketh the heart sick, Mr. Darrow and Congressman Black will have sick hearts. The House of Representatives is dry two to one.

President Hoover is warned by leaders in his own party that any wet move would be fatal to Republicans. The Republican party is threatened by the Anti-Saloon League with punishment, if "it backslides."

There is not much hope of wet action there.

A gentleman is here from China to borrow from the United States Government one thousand million ounces of silver, worth about $350,000,000.

China uses silver as money, and would be much obliged if Uncle Sam would lend a billion ounces.

Fortunately we are not in war days, when anybody could shovel out American billions to foreigners. Congress must pass on the proposed Chinese loan, and will probably ask, "Do you want the money to feed your starving tens of millions, or to give your 500,000 soldiers their back pay and keep up the fighting?"

A great swarm of meteors is headed toward the earth, and the head of the procession should be visible next Saturday. You get an idea of the swarm's size, reading that the tail of the procession, its units traveling much more rapidly than rifle bullets, is three years away.

It is the terrific speed of these meteors, usually made of practically solid iron, and often as big as a cottage, that saves us from them.

Because of their speed the meteors melt and become dust from friction when they strike our atmosphere, and rarely hurt anybody on earth, the majority settling on the ocean's bed as meteoric dust.

If their speed were diminished by 99 per cent or more, the swarm now approaching would probably kill half the people on earth.

The business world, including all publishers, will appreciate President Hoover's sound advice to advertisers.

Those with long experience in advertising know that its evils correct themselves. Advertising not founded on truth and value will not last. A good name, with advertisers as with women, is the most valuable of all assets.

The General Motors factory and machinery are worth probably two hundred million dollars. The name of General Motors products are worth more than two thousand million dollars.

A good advertisement must do five things and do them all. It it fails in one it fails in all. It must make people SEE it, READ it, UNDERSTAND it, BELIEVE it, WANT it.

Sir Henri Deterding, of Shell Oil, is a busy man. He runs gigantic oil enterprises in Java, China, Africa, Venezuela, and all over the United States. Now Russia accuses him of plotting to overthrow her government and threatens to execute eight conspirators alleged to be associated with him.

There is strength in unity and Deterding has that strength. Our oil companies are many. Our biggest, most powerful company, Standard, is chopped up into small pieces to keep it from getting too big.

John D. Rockefeller, who created it, is past 90, and not active. The men that helped him build it, Archbold, Rogers, are dead. To Mr. John D. Rockefeller, Jr., money means as little as the salt water in the ocean means to a fisherman's boy. He is busy with science, philanthropy, home building, art restoration, and has no time for Standard Oil or money making.

Able men that in old days would have continued building Standard Oil's power, giving Deterding a desperate fight, are now confined to minor activities, busy inventing cunning names for Standard Oil products that compete with each other, bewilder the public and injure Standard Oil.

That company needs a lawyer to tell it how to protect itself and its stockholders from the Dutch-British competition, which is pushing it to the wall and says condescendingly:

"Well, not to hurt your feelings, I shall send in less oil from Venezuela to the United States and use up cheap California oil instead."

Brooklyn, "City of Churches," may change its name to "City of Gangsters." Murdered men, sitting or sprawling in their automobiles, are frequent features in Brooklyn scenery.

Yesterday Brooklyn's police

"Garrett Murder" Is Scouted by Police

Reports emanating from New York and current in Boston that Oliver B. Garrett was murdered last June and that his body is at the bottom of Boston Harbor, were discounted today by official police records.

These records reveal that Garrett was in New York as late as two months ago and that Police inspectors George Augusta and William LeBlanc missed him by only a few hours at a house there.

Through July and well into August, it is also known, he was playing a handbook almost daily at a place in Coney Island.

Reports are on file with Police Commissioner Hultman of various Garrett activities since his disappearance on the night of June 20.

According to the "murder" rumors today he was slain within a day or two after his disappearance by two gunmen, who then carried his body to the harbor, where it was weighted with rocks and thrown in.

SHACK HE WAS IN NEAR JACKMAN DISCOVERED

Word Received That Missing Hunter Had Occupied It Within 12 Hours

A shack, occupied, within 12 hours of the finding, by Mitchell B. Kaufman, missing Malden rubber manufacturer, has been located in the woods above Jackman, Me., according to word received this afternoon by Fred Allen, treasurer of the Converse Rubber Co. of Malden, of which Kaufman is head.

Confidence that their brother would be found alive was expressed today by two sisters of the missing man, Mrs. Albert H. Wechstel of Jamaicaway, Jamaica Plain, and Mrs. Raphael Sussman of Foster st., Brookline.

Jackman, Me., Nov. 12—Sharp criticism of members of Mitchell B. Kaufman's hunting party for failure to report his disappearance a week ago was voiced today by Sheriff Elon H. Markham as conviction grew that Kaufman may be dead or may be in Canada.

The sheriff declared it was not until Sunday, four days after the vanishing, that the name of the missing man and details of the disappearance were disclosed, and then only on insistence of the sheriff, who heard about the case that day.

"Had they notified me Wednesday," said the sheriff, "I would have had dogs there that night, and I feel we would have found him, dead or alive. Now I think it is probably too late. The footprints we found are days old. We have a dog working on them, but he may lose them any minute because of their staleness.

"If he was alive and in the woods why didn't he fire his gun; why didn't he light a fire? He could not possibly have been more than a mile from where he was stationed in the woods when his absence was discovered.

WHEN A MAN IS LOST

"Even though a man lost in the forest may keep repeating to himself that he won't walk in a circle he always does unless he travels by compass.

"But sometimes a man who realizes he is lost will believe his own sense of direction instead of his compass."

Today's posse engaged in the hunt numbered nearly 100, most of them experienced woodsmen, and their search again was augmented by one from an airplane.

It was the eighth day of Kaufman's mysterious disappearance while on a hunting trip with a number of friends from Greater Boston and Connecticut, and since the search began many square miles of territory about Crocker Pond Camps have been covered.

DARKNESS HALTS HUNT

A faint trail through the woods was picked up yesterday by the dogs but the descent of night forced the hunters to give up until today, when an attempt was made to pick up this trail again.

A second party of searchers entrained at 1 a. m. for Holeb, 12 miles away, from where they will beat back through the woods to the point where Kaufman was last seen.

The party in charge of Jack Sterling, expert woodsman, expects to consume two days in search of the locality Kaufman could have covered in the time since his disappearance.

Kaufman's friends and relatives believe that he is safe in some one of the small villages in Quebec. The towns of St. Luger and St. Gideon are within easy access of the border.

India Leaders Riot

Bombay, Nov. 12 (AP)—The president and all members of the Bombay war council were arrested, and 25 members of the Indian national congress were injured today during a demonstration against the opening of the Indian round table conference at London.

London, Nov. 12—A promise from the throne, echoed by Prime Minister J. Ramsay MacDonald, that India will be granted self-government in a form to be determined by the conference itself, was made by King George today in his speech opening the long-awaited round table conference on India.

The king's address, heard by the eighty-six conference delegates of Great Britain, British India and the independent Indian states in the royal gallery of the House of Lords and a distinguished assemblage that included United States Ambassador and Mrs. Dawes, took only seven minutes. Immediately at its conclusion he bowed to all present and left the gallery.

"It is my hope," the king said, "that the future government of India, based upon the foundation of self government, will give expression to her honorable aspirations."

When the king's speech was concluded, the Maharajah of Patiala, chancellor of the council of Indian princes, proposed the name of Premier MacDonald as permanent chairman of the conference. The

Prince of Wales Pilots Giant DO-X Plane

Calshot Aerodrome, Eng., Nov. 12 (INS)—The Prince of Wales for 10 minutes today became a transport pilot of the largest heavier-than-air craft in the world.

Taking the controls of the giant flying boat DO-X for 10 minutes during his 25-minute flight, the Prince, a licensed pilot, put the big ship through its paces over the harbor of Southampton and earned the unqualified praise of the officers.

"The Prince is a fine pilot," declared Co-Pilot Merz of the flying boat after the ship had landed.

The prince expressed himself much pleased with the flight and said he enjoyed the manner in which the big ship answered to the controls.

Others who made the flight were unstinted in their praise for the prince's ability as a pilot. Among those who made the flight with him were Lord and Lady Louis Mountbatten and Frau Dornier, wife of the ship's designer.

The prince put the big ship through banks and circles over the harbor while the 12 powerful motors roared. It was with reluctance the prince surrendered the controls to Captain Christiansen when the time came for landing.

"She's a wonderful ship," the prince said, turning to Dr. Dornier as he relinquished control.

The prince and his companions were the interested observers of an experiment conducted by ship's officers. A glass of sherry wine was placed on the saloon table just before Captain Christiansen nosed the ship down to the water. The landing was made so smoothly not a drop was spilled.

Later the prince flew his Amphian plane back to Sunningdale and went out for a round of golf.

The DO-X will leave Friday morning for Bordeaux, third lap of her trip to Venezuela.

CHILD IS HURT FATALLY IN ROXBURY SCHOOL

Parent Claims Lads Kicked Her and Accuses Master of Neglect of Duty

A charge that his daughter, Dorothea, 8, was beaten and kicked so severely by two of her schoolmates in the cloakroom of the Aaron Davis school, in Roxbury, that she died from her injuries four days later in the City Hospital, has been filed with the Boston school committee by George Carson of Adams st., Roxbury.

An additional complaint that John S. Riley, master of the school had failed to make a proper investigation of the reported beating and kicking episode has been made by the girl's father.

This [illegible] Joseph J. Hurley, chairman of the school committee, said he had been asked to look into the matter by Atty. John J. McCarthy, counsel for the girl's parents.

SISTER TELLS OF BEATING

According to Mr. and Mrs. Carson, their little girl, said by the teachers to have been one of the smartest youngsters in her class, came home crying shortly before noon on Thursday, October 30. The child, the parents said, complained that she was feeling ill.

On the following day Mrs. Carson noticed a swelling on the girl's left leg and when she questioned her, Dorothea said that she did not know the cause of it.

Her sister, Elizabeth, however, volunteered the information, Mrs. Carson said, that Dorothea had been beaten and kicked by two boys in the class room because she had reported them as having talked while the teacher was absent. The names of the boys are being withheld by school authorities.

EMERGENCY OPERATION

On Saturday, when Dorothea's condition appeared to grow worse, her father took her to City Hospital. There the child's name immediately was placed upon the danger list and an emergency operation was resorted to save her life.

Early Monday morning November 3, Dorothea died.

According to the hospital officials

KING GEORGE AND PREMIER M'DONALD PLEDGE INDIA SELF RULE

PREMIER IS ELECTED CHAIRMAN

proposal was seconded by the Aga Khan and unanimously accepted.

The maharajah said:

"All of us, whether we are princes or ministers, who represent the Indian states, will cooperate most heartily with Great Britain and with British India in working for the solution of the problems that confront us."

KING GEORGE'S SPEECH

From the British Empire standpoint, the round table conference transcended by far the arms parley in importance, for the paramount subject for discussion is what measure of self-government the crown is ready to grant her most populous and most discontented colony.

In his speech King George called attention to the "growth in ideas and aspirations of nationhood" which has taken place in India during the last ten years and which "defy the customary measurements of time."

"It should therefore be no matter of surprise to the men of this generation that, as was then contemplated, it should have become necessary to exhibit in review the results of what was begun 10 years ago and to make further provision for the future," he continued.

"Such a review has been carried out by the commission appointed by me for that purpose (the Simon commission) and you will have before you the outcome of their labors together with other proposals which have been made to the solution of the great problem confronting you."

The King expressed the hope that the future government of India, based on the foundation of self-government, "will give expression to her honorable aspirations."

MacDONALD CHAIRMAN

Prime Minister MacDonald, responding to his election as chairman, said:

"Declarations made by British sovereigns and statesmen from time to time that Britain's work in India was to prepare her for self-government have been plain.

"We are met to try to register by agreement a recognition of the fact that India has reached a distinctive point in her constitutional evolution. Whatever that agreement may be some will say it is not good enough, or that it goes too far. Let them say so. We must boldly appeal to an intelligent and informed public opinion.

HOPES FOR SUCCESS

"Yet there is much to give us confidence in our ultimate success. This is not the time for reciting, to say nothing of prejudging, our problems. We shall meet them as we proceed. Let us face them as men, determined to surmount them.

"The association of the princes for the first time in a joint conclave with the representatives of the people of British India is symbolical of the gradual molding together of India into one whole.

"We must now begin our labors. Things have been said in the past, whether in anger or blindness or for mischief, which we had better forget at this table. Let us strive to make a story of this conference worthy the best political genius of our peoples, and add by it to the respect paid by the world to both our nations."

The Gaekwar of Baroda followed Premier MacDonald. He stressed the gravity of the problems to be met by the conference, saying that never before had the issues so "involved the prosperity of India's millions and the greatness of the British Empire."

Other speakers were Sir Muhammad Akzar Hydari, Srinvasa Sastri, Mr. Bape, representing Burma, and the Maharajah of Jimmu and Kashmir. The last three stressed India's desire for dominion status.

M. A. Jinnah, British Indian delegate, concluded the speeches.

Some wear their ceremonial robes of silk and velvet, their swarthy faces topped by magnificent turbans decorated with flashing jewels and make the scene brilliant.

Following the inaugural session, the delegates adjourned to St. James Palace, where the conference is expectd to continue well into the new year. The first working session to determine the agenda to be discussed will be held on Monday.

Opening of the conference found all the cards on the table, with the exception of a final report from Lord Irwin, viceroy of India, representing the view of the British Indian Government. This is to be made public tomorrow.

Father Charges School Boys Beat Girl, 8, to Death

the girl's death was due to osteomyelitis, a bone disease. This according to physicians at the hospital could have been caused by a kick or an injury.

Describing the beating allegedly inflicted on her sister, Elizabeth Carson, said today:

"We were just going out for the noon recess. Dorothea's coat was hanging on the first hook and mine was on the last one. I saw one of the boys grab her by the back and throw her down on the floor. When she fell the two boys began to kick her in the stomach and on the face and legs. I heard Dorothea cry 'Don't do that. Don't do that,' and then the two boys ran and got into line.

SENT HOME BY TEACHER

"Dorothea put her hand up to her face and went out to recess. When she came back she put her head on the desk and was still crying. The teacher asked her what was the matter. Dorothea said, 'I have a stomach ache,' and the teacher told her to go home.

"When I saw the two boys kicking Dorothea I told the teacher and she said to me, 'Go back into line.' The teacher could not see the boys striking Dorothea because she was standing in the other doorway watching the children leave the room."

Elizabeth's story of the alleged attack upon her sister was corroborated almost in exact detail by a boy in the same class. He stated that he saw the two boys named by Elizabeth strike and kick Dorothea.

According to the father of Dorothea, John S. Riley of the school told him that he did not believe that the child's death resulted from any injuries which she had received at the school.

Riley, to a reporter, admitted that School Superintendent Jeremiah E. Burke had telephoned him and had questioned him about the incident.

BOYS QUESTIONED

He said that when Carson appeared at the school and told his story, he, Riley, sent for the two youths Carson named. The boys admitted he said that there had been some pushing in the coat room. He also said that one of the boys admitted that he had kicked Dorothea in the stomach accidentally. Riley said the boy told him that he had been tripped and that in falling his foot had struck Dorothea.

Riley also confirmed reports that he had called an assembly of the students in both the Dearborn and the Davis schools, over which he has supervision, and that he had discussed the death of the Carson girl with the pupils. He said he took this action to put to rest ugly rumors that were spreading.

Riley said:

"I do not think that this beating occurred in our school. I investigated the complaint made by the child's father, and I questioned the two boys in his presence. They said that there had been considerable pushing, and one of them admitted that in the pushing he had accidentally kicked the Carson child."

Asked if, as a result of the complaint made to him by Carson, he had made out and filed a written report with the school committee, Riley said that he had not. He said, however, that at least two members of the school committee had questioned him about the matter.

CHAMPION BOY FLIER LANDS AT AIRPORT

Boynton Greeted by Scores as He Speeds Back Home for Reception

Swooping down on the East Boston airport after a speedy run from Rockland, Me., Stanley Boynton, 18-year-old Lexington youth who captured the junior transcontinental flight record, was greeted today by scores of aviation officials and enthusiasts.

He took off from Rockland shortly before noon and arrived at East Boston at 1:18 p. m., covering the distance at a speed better than 160 miles per hour.

Stepping from his Sessna cabin monoplane, which he has painted scarlet and named "Lucky," young Boynton declared his satisfaction at returning to New England.

"This stuff about California being an ideal flying country is wrong," he told Harry D. Copland, manager of the Curtiss-Wright Boston base. "Too many mountains there, and I don't like mountains."

Boynton told of his forced landing in Casa Grande, N. M., at night and with a rapidly emptying gas tank. The next morning he discovered he had flown between two towers and landed only 200 feet away from a sand pit 50 feet in depth.

The honors gained by the youngster rest lightly on his shoulders and he remains unchanged by the adulation heaped upon him. He took off after a short interview for a flight over his home town, where he is to be honored by a public gathering in Lexington high school tonight.

The board of selectmen is engineering the celebration, aided by several civic and fraternal organizations of the town.

Boynton announced today that he will take a special winter course at Massachusetts Institute of Technology in commercial air transportation.

Blast Victim

KENNETH C. MAYO, an engine specialist, was one of two men injured when an explosion wrecked the fishing dragger Santa Rita as it was being tested today.

Two men were injured and three others were rescued today off Deer Island after an explosion wrecked the 45-foot fishing dragger Santa Rita on a trial trip for compass adjustments.

Kenneth C. Mayo of Washington st., Quincy, and Proctor Jordan of Broadway, Somerville, were treated at East Boston coast guard base for cuts and burns after they were taken there by patrol boat CG-139.

John Tringalli, owner of the $7000 craft, was blown overboard with the blast and was picked up by a passing fishing smack until the arrival of the coast guard.

Maurice Zernere of 11 Clark st. and Joseph Capone of 150 Endicott st., both North End, were the other men aboard.

Mayo, once a member of Donald B. McMillan's crew on Arctic exploration, was an engine specialist, and Proctor was adjusting the compass.

The explosion blew the cabin from its base, shattered the windows and set fire to the woodwork. The men remaining on board fought the flames and stayed with the boat until the patrol boat CG-278 towed it into East Boston.

This Time the Rock Hit Moses

By ARTHUR "BUGS" BAER

Senator Moses bobs up with a Latin prescription grabbed off an old drugstore bottle.

"Timeo Democrats et dona ferentes."

Meaning to beware of Democrats bearing campaign gifts. He regards Democratic co-operation the same way that McIntyre regarded Heath.

At the end of an unsuccessful search for a lost dollar, McIntyre looked gloomily at Heath and said:

"Ah doan say you took that dollar. But I do say ah might have found it if you hadn't helped me to look fo' it."

The Democrats and Republicans will pull together like a noose and a neck.

We don't know why Senator Moses went into Latin just when he was starting to get his apologies so perfect in English.

If the Democrats have any gifts the Republicans should grab them first and talk politics second.

We would like to be around when that big reconciliation takes place.

Will Al Smith and Andy Mellon rush into each other's arms on the Capitol steps or will they wait coyly until the moon goes behind the clouds?

SIX BAY STATE CITIES HOLD PRIMARIES

Chief Interest Centers in Battles for Mayor in Quincy and Fall River

In six Massachusetts cities today voters turned out in good strength to nominate candidates for municipal offices.

The primaries were in Quincy, Fall River, Taunton, Haverhill, Gardner and Peabody, with the spotlights on Quincy and Fall River mayoralty battles.

In Quincy, Mayor Thomas J. McGrath, for the first time in the city's history, seeks to be mayor for more than four consecutive years. If chosen today and in December at the election, it will be his third term. Previous mayors have had third terms, but when a term was only one year.

Opposed to Mayor McGrath is County Commissioner Russell T. Bates, former city councillor and former representative, with the third man President Angelo P. Bizzozero of the city council.

BATTLE IN FALL RIVER

Of the 11 candidates for six city councillor-at-large nominations, Councillors Ralph W. Prout and Carl H. Leander seek re-elections. Other strong candidates are Francis J. Fahey, probation officer of Quincy court, and William M. Edmonston, president of the Chamber of Commerce.

Fall River has a spirited mayoralty battle, with Mayor Edmund P. Talbot seeking a fifth term in opposition to five other candidates. Two of the six are to be nominated before polls close tonight.

In Haverhill Mayor Forrest V. Smith seeks another term and is opposed by former City Solicitor A. Franklin Priest and Dr. Crane.

SIXTEEN CANDIDATES

The aldermanic race has 16 candidates for four places and the school committee fight five candidates for four places, three of the candidates running on stickers.

Gardner, holding its first general municipal primary since receiving its city charter in 1922, has four candidates for mayor.

Taunton has an off-year as far as a mayoralty fight is concerned, nominations being for city council.

A feature of the Peabody primaries is the candidacy for city council of Mohammed S. Hussien, a naturalized Turkish citizen, a Christian and a "bone-dry" Republican.

TEACHERS FREE IN STRAPPING

Gloucester, Nov. 12—Roy E. Keller, superintendent of schools for Manchester and Essex, and Irving Stuart, principal of Essex high school, were found not guilty today of assault and battery on Ivan Muise, 14, whose parents complained that the boy was beaten in school last September.

The officials were tried last month in Gloucester court before Judge Sumner York. Today Judge York reviewed the testimony.

"The boy's testimony was uncorroborated, while the testimony of the teachers was corroborated by four teachers," the judge said.

"There was no evidence of assault and battery on the boy's body, no welts, no ridges, no abrasions. The severity of the punishment was no more than could be expected from the strap used and there were no signs of a stick being used.

"It is the duty of a teacher to enforce regulations and the laws of the state say that they may inflict corporal punishment and assume a portion of the responsibility of parents in this respect."

The Muise boy was punished Sept. 23 after Principal Stuart said he was sliding on the floor and creating other disturbance.

Insull's Birthday Just Another Day.

Chicago, Nov. 12 (AP)—To all outward appearances yesterday was just another day of work for Samuel Insull, head of the $3,000,000,000 Insull utilities group, but his friends knew that it was his 71st birthday anniversary.

Samuel Insull

Arriving at his office at 7:45 a. m., with a brisk step, he finished his mail at 9, held conferences until noon, took an hour for lunch, worked all afternoon and spent the night until 11:30 o'clock going over programs and financial details of the civic opera, of which he is a principal sponsor.

"Rules of life?" he queried. "My only rule is that I never take a drink."

Her departure was the first intimation that Rose is seeking a divorce from Edward Reider, manager of the Mayflower Hotel. Trouble arose this year when Reider inserted an advertisement in newspapers, asserting he would no longer be responsible for his wife's debts.

Armistice Day Wedding Ends Actress' Tiff

New York, Nov. 12—With the scraps of a torn-up marriage license and a craving for an Armistice hour wedding, Miss Anita Kerry, actress now appearing in "Elizabeth the Queen" at the Guild theater, and James E. Sauter, a broker, dashed into the municipal chapel shortly before 11 a. m. yesterday.

Anita Kerry

"Can we get married on these?" Sauter asked with a grin, indicating the scraps. "We got the license yesterday but had an argument last night and tore it up."

Paul Poveromo, the chapel clerk, suggested it would be better to have a duplicate made out in the license bureau down stairs.

"But its only a minute or so until 11," protested Miss Kerry.

"Everybody stops work and faces to the east at 11," reminded the clerk, and so they waited. After the two-minute observance of the Armistice, Sauter got a new license and they were married.

'Emir' of Kurdistan Again in Trouble

New York, Nov. 12—Salaam! Prince Mohammed Pasha Al Raschid, Emir of Kurdistan and pretender to the splendid throne of his father, has come to town again.

"Emir" of Kurdistan.

But, on second thought, never mind the salaam. For the prince is on Ellis Island now, and if federal authorities have their way he and his princess will soon be back to join the other Kurdistanians.

Detectives dropped in on the prince yesterday as he was adorning his majestic personage in his apartment at 155 East 52d st., and bundled him off to Ellis Island.

The prince says he is an American citizen born in Detroit. But immigration authorities assert the Prince is an alien, and has been thrown out of the country three times.

Star Is Joined by Notables of Filmdom in Entertainment; the Governor Attends

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS
(Universal Service)

Los Angeles, Nov. 12—Brave, battle-scared veterans, wearing the uniform of privates, rubbed shoulders last night with their colonels and other superior officers. All of them were guests at the Armistice ball given in their honor by Marion Davies at the Biltmore Hotel.

Several thousand uniformed men who 12 years ago had celebrated the end of the World War were brought together again to reminisce over the war if they chose, to dance if they were able, to enjoy a bounteous supper and, above all, to forget their cares for one night.

Col. Marion Davies of the 26th U. S. Infantry, radiant in her uniform, received her 3500 guests making each feel that he was being given a special welcome.

Governor-elect James Rolph, Jr., who had journeyed from San Francisco especially to be present, stood by her side, adding his gracious word of welcome to our brave soldier boys. He had received many other invitations to other Armistice Day functions but he accepted Miss Davies' invitation because of his admiration for her and his intense sympathy with the movement to lighten burdens of our veterans.

Governor-elect Rolph made a stirring speech which won him many additional friends it was so straightforward, so sincere and so gracious.

MIGHT AID JOBLESS

The veterans were invited by Miss Davies to this splendid ball not alone as a celebration of Armistice Day but in the hope that people throughout the country would be induced to spend money to relieve the unemployment situation. The veterans in many cases have been hard hit by the wave of rigid economy that has swept over the country. Many of them need employment and help and this joyous occasion made them forget their troubles.

Motion picture stars, famous the world over, mingled with the boys, smiling at them, chatting with them and helping Marion Davies to make this an occasion to be long remembered after they had gone back to their hospitals, battleships, army posts and homes.

Wives and sweethearts, who share the world's adoration of their favorite motion picture stars, were just as thrilled at meeting the stars as were the veterans.

It seems as if all of Marion's friends in the film world (and she has many) were eager to help her make this an event. Other engagements were forgotten when the opportunity was given the film folk to join Marion in making the veterans happy. Marion Davies is one of the few people I know who has only to speak to get the undivided support of the film colony.

Hundreds of soldiers wore the coveted decorations, distinguishing them as having done some special deed of bravery. There were many croix de guerre, some congressional medals of honor and a few distinguished service crosses worn, in some cases proudly on shabby uniforms.

Seventy-five officers from battleships stationed near Los Angeles were among the guests. Seventy-four men who have been in the United States Hospital at San Fernando were carried to the Biltmore to see the entertainment provided for them and to take part in the celebration.

A touching sight to see, the boys who were invalided in action and who were being given a party specially planned for them. Eighty-three veterans from the hospital at Sawtelle were taken to the ball in motor ambulances.

Eddie Cantor in his own inimitable fashion, sang and danced. How the boys loved Eddie's nonsense. Never was he in better form. Leo Carrillo, another headliner, did his best and—well, you know what his best is as well as I do. He will never have a more appreciative audience.

COLONEL MARION'S GIFT

Then there was Cliff Edwards and Benny Rubin doing a perfectly nonsensical number on football, mixing up with Mohler and Marshal Duffield, heroes of the 1930 Trojan team. The Albertina Rasch Girls, trained to perfection, Doris Coddington, attractive dancer and singer, the Coast Artillery Band from Fort McArthur, were among the highlights.

Col. Marion Davies of the 26th U. S. Infantry, admitted only the night before as a new member of the first division, A. E. F., presented a set of new colors for this southern California sector. It was a colorful sight to see Marion, slender, blonde and looking unusually small in her uniform, taking part in the impressive ceremonial.

If more of us could remember these veterans it would be a good thing and I think everyone owes Marion Davies a debt of gratitude for bringing it to mind.

Composer Names March for Marion Davies

Los Angeles, Nov. 11—In the stirring music of a new military march, Morris Chernoff, former army bandmaster and a member of the Disabled Veterans of the World War, paid his tribute tonight to Miss Marion Davies.

With Chernoff conducting, the band from Fort MacArthur played the "Colonel Davies March," and then the composer presented to Miss Davies an original manuscript of the music.

The cover of the composition was inscribed:

"The Colonel Davies March. Dedicated to Miss Marion Davies, honorary colonel, 26th U. S. Infantry, with compliments of the Disabled Veterans of the World War."

HUBERT ASKS ACCOUNTING, RECEIVER

She Claims in R. I. Battle She Was Partner of Husband in Managing Pugilists

Providence, Nov. 12—Judge Tanner in Superior Court issued today an injunction restraining Mrs. Kate Conley Flynn from removing any of the assets of the estate of her late husband, Leo Flynn, and said he would appoint a receiver.

Providence, Nov. 12—The widow of Leo P. Flynn, former manager of Jack Dempsey, and Hubert Flynn, the brother, went into battle today in Superior Court over an accounting of the late manager's estate and the appointment of a receiver.

Hubert Flynn seeks the accounting, claiming he was a partner with Leo in various enterprises, but that, while the partnership profited approximately $128,000 to $145,000 a year, Hubert drew for himself a mere $1500 to $1800 a year.

The widow, Mrs. Kate Conley Flynn, in answering Hubert's bill of particulars, denied he was a partner of Leo and claimed she was the partner and she aided in managing some of the fighters in the big Flynn stable.

ARRANGED SHARKEY BOUT

Testifying they were married 21 years at the time of Leo's death last May, Mrs. Flynn declared today she was known generally as hr husband's business partner.

Two fighters she managed, she declared, were Jimmie Farsane and Pete Harley, but there were others in the light, welterweight and heavyweight divisions.

She was with her husband and assisted him in arranging the Dempsey-Sharkey fight.

Prior to the Dempsey-Tunney "long count" battle in Chicago, she claimed, she was at the Dempsey camp for five days, watching Dempsey's food and keeping it locked up in fear that an attempt might be made to poison it.

TELLS OF "READY CASH"

Dempsey, she said, gave her a $9000 diamond bracelet in gratitude.

She asserted that Hubert and Leo had many quarrels, and she claimed that Hubert's connection with the organization was chiefly that of "traveling secretary" with fighters.

Flynn, in his testimony, said his brother called him "Flash" and had him as a partner from the time Leo first started in the game.

He admitted there never was a written agreement with Leo, and said the nearest thing to an accounting between them was in 1924 when Leo told him an accounting would be made after Hubert's return from a trip.

Leo, according to his brother, always kept from $200,000 to $218,000 in $1000 bills in a New York bank safety deposit box, where he also had two handfuls of unset diamonds. The thousand dollar bills were "ready cash."

Other warrants were granted to hold Sebastian Circo, 28, of Leverett st., West End; Margaret Jannuzzi, 25, of Somerville ave., Somerville, and Mrs. Frances DiGangi of Barton st., West End, as material witnesses.

Guida was killed as he crossed a vacant lot at Lowell and Willard sts. on his way to Mrs. DiGangi's home last night.

Arraigned before Judge Zottoli, Cutrona entered no plea and was held without bail for a hearing Nov. 22.

Circo and Mrs. DiGangi were held in bonds of $500 and the Januzzi woman was released on her personal recognizance.

Police also announced they were searching for Anthony DiGangi, husband of the admitted sweetheart of Guida for questioning.

ADMITTED "TRIANGLE"

According to police, Mrs. DiGangi said her husband was jealous of her. He had heard gossip about her while serving a sentence at Deer Island recently, she said.

Upon his release, police said she told them, DiGangi confronted her with the gossip and she said she had admitted that Guida was her admirer and that she had asked her husband for a divorce so that she might marry Guida.

During her first questioning last night, Mrs. DiGangi was reticent to talk of her friendship with Guida and was about to be released when the police heard of the gossip about her and Guida.

"I know you were running around," she quoted her husband as saying, according to police.

In many parts of Brooklyn it is not unusual when a man asks, "Where can I buy whiskey?" to refer him to the nearest undertaking establishment.

Often the whiskey makes a real undertaker necessary. Five men on Monday night bought denatured alcohol and decided to make it safe by boiling it. Four of the five died.

Americans that have "done Europe" will learn with sadness that the house of Munroe & Co. has closed its doors. Several generations of Americans have made the bank their headquarters in Paris and thousands that knew no other French knew Sept Rue Scribe, which was the old address, or Quatre Rue Ventadour, the address just closed.

The ill fortune of the old American house in Paris is part of an alarming crumbling process in French banking institutions that has suddenly taken France by surprise.

The French, however, are resourceful, thrifty, entirely beyond our conception of thrift, and the French government will know how to stabilize its financial institutions.

WOODCOCK WILL ASK 500 MORE DRY MEN

Washington, Nov. 12 (INS)—Convinced the government is "on the right track" in its policy of prohibition enforcement, Director Amos W. W. Woodcock returned here today from an interrupted Western inspection trip.

He is still convinced that 500 agents additional to the present prohibition service are necessary to establish an adequate dry machine.

"I am convinced that the present enforcement policy is sound," Woodcock said. "Training a small Federal force to the highest degree of efficiency and requiring it to contact with the local people to obtain co-operation is the proper method of procedure.

"By the increase in the force there would be one agent to each 4,000 population. I believe such a force could get results."

Frequent reports of recommendations for modification of the prohibition law by the Wickersham crime commission were passed over by Woodcock without discussion. He said it was not his job to discuss changes in the law, but to enforce it.

His attention had not yet been brought officially to reported advertisements appearing in newspapers and magazines for grape concentrates which might be converted into wine. He said the law was clear, that is, the advertisement of a product that was intended for unlawful purposes, is illegal. The law permits the manufacture in the home for home consumption of non-intoxicating fruit juices.

HUGE FUND FOR IDLE WORKERS SOUGHT

Washington, Nov. 12 (US)—Congress, immediately upon convening next month, will be asked to appropriate millions for relief of the needy unemployed this winter, it was indicated today.

This course was suggested as a direct method of relieving distress but at the same time the administration will recommend a large appropriation for construction of federal buildings and other projects to provide work.

HUGE INCOME DROP

Meanwhile, Col. Arthur Woods chairman of the President's emergency committee, revealed that the gross income of the construction and automobile industries so far this year is $3,000,000,000 less than in 1929. Estimating that 60 per cent represents labor payments, the loss in wages was $1,000,000,000 for the two fields, he said. Approximately 900,000 are out of work in these two industries, he estimated.

Industries as a whole are operating at 73 per cent of normal, he said.

Senator Wagner pointed out that the process of appropriating funds and starting public works must necessarily be lengthy and that much of the work would not get under way to the point of providing jobs until the winter was well spent.

CONSIDER INSURANCE

Senator Wagner also announced he would introduce a resolution for an investigation of proposals for unemployment insurance in which the government would participate.

Col. Woods announced that Dr. Lillian Gilbreth, women's expert on the federal committe, would broadcast an appeal to the women of the country Friday night to aid in the present emergency.

Astronomers Train Eyes on Sky for 'Snow' of Stars

Chicago, Nov. 12 (INS)—Lay and professional astronomers these nights are directing eyes heavenward in the hope of sighting occasional shooting stars which are the glittering "debris" of the swarm of Leonid meteors.

No more than a secondary spectacle will be presented this year, for the big show is scheduled two years hence. In November, 1932, if the star gazers' desires are gratified, the meteors will be dropping so thick and fast as to resemble a snowfall.

As is usual, however, this cosmic snow will not reach the earth. The Leonids, each virtually no larger than a pea or a grain of sand, will be consumed by traveling at the approximate rate of 26,000,000 miles per second.

All this, according to Dr. Edwin Frost, nationally known astronomer and head of the University of Chicago observatory at Williams Bay, Wis.

He said:

"The swarm of Leonid meteors, which probably resulted from the disintegration of a comet, crosses the world's orbit every 33 years and has been known for the last 1000 years. They are called Leonids becaus they emanate from the general direction of the constellation of Leo, or the Lion."

The part of the sky to watch for the meteors is due east and about half way to the zenith. They will not appear before 11:30 p. m. The maximum display is expected to come this Saturday and Sunday.

BIG BANKERS IN LONDON PARLEY

London, Nov. 12 (AP)—George L. Harrison, governor of the Federal Reserve Bank of New York, today conferred with Montagu Norman, governor of the Bank of England. Despite assertion that they discussed only matters of routine British financial writers attached importance to their meeting.

They considered it likely the two financiers may have discused the problem of war reparations and the possibility of a moratorium. They regarded the presence here of Owen D. Young, author of the Young plan, as giving support to their deductions. Mr. Young, it was pointed out, has visited Ambassador Dawes almost daily.

Most of the British financial writers professed to see as a motive of the meeting a discussion of gold supplies, reparations or proposals by which the giants of international finance could alleviate world economic conditions.

Pola's Husband in Battle on Liner

New York, Nov. 12 (AP)—Four minutes of fisticuffing aboard the liner France between Prince Serge Mdivani, Pola Negri's estranged husband, and Harry Robles, vaudeville actor, enlivened the trip for passengers of the vessel, which docked today.

Both said they were friends again. Prince Mdivani took exception to a remark made by Robles during a party. The prince's upper lip was cut.

Of the recent Paris divorce action of Miss Negri, he said:

"I'm very glad it is all over. Miss Negri is a beautiful woman. She was for art and I for business."

Electricity Found to Be Healing Factor in Air

Berlin, Nov. 12 (INS)—Electricity is the healing factor in the air, according to Prof. Friedrich Dessauer, youthful scientist and prominent Reichstag deputy of the Catholic Centrist party.

Prof. Dessauer believes his discovery wil lead to an entirely new method of medical treatment, as the various effects of different climates have now been analyzed and traced to their causes.

Dessauer, knowing neither pressure nor temperature nor moisture were the decisive factors in the effect of climate on the human system, artificially charged ordinary air with electricity and discovered the amount of positive or negative ions with which the air is charged has certain biological effects. It has been established that in places where people easily fall ill of the so-called "mountain fever," the air contains a large amount of ions.

By an apparatus in which ordinary air would be charged with any desired amount of negative or positive ions Dessauer artificially created the "mountain disease" with voluntary patients.

Prof. Dessauer claims to have further established that negative ions lower blood pressure and slow up the breathing process, while positive ions increase blood pressure and accelerate breathing. The professor has constructed an apparatus for aerotherapeutics, as he calls his treatment.

SILVER ANNIVERSARY

EXPERIENCE
EXPERIMENT

This is the silver anniversary of my first store—twenty-five years devoted to the study of feet and shoes.

My customers are the beneficiaries of all that experience. Everything I have been able to learn in that quarter century has been passed on to my staff of expert shoe fitters. That is why you get scientific fit as well as a scientific shoe in the Walsh Arch Preserver Shoe Shops.

Arch Preserver Shoes are constructed to give you the natural tread intended for the human foot. They have a perfectly flat innersole so that the toes cannot crowd one another, so that the muscles may expand with every step you take. The anchored steel arch—characteristic of Arch Preserver Shoes—provides unfailing support at the three points where the weight of the body is distributed.

Because of these exclusive features Arch Preserver Shoes have a proud record of accomplishment — of actually preventing and correcting many foot troubles.

Arch Preserver Shoes are no experiment.

"Ruled by Law of Supply and Demand," Asserts Producer of "Smiles"

No individual or group will ever eliminate ticket speculation.

Such is the conviction of Florenz Ziegfeld, show producer extraordinary, and the Boston Evening American publishes it today in the first of a series of opinions by the master showman on pertinent theater questions.

A producer has his troubles according to Ziegfeld's answers to 10 questions propounded by Nicholas Young, dramatic editor of the Boston Evening American.

$30,000 LOSS HERE

Apart from production troubles—joustings with authors, composers, players, musicians and unions—a show such as "Smiles," which is taking in an average of $5600 a night and $4400 the matinee, a total of $121,600 for three weeks, will show a loss of between $30,000 and $35,000 for its Boston run, he declares.

In each installment, one or more of the questions propounded to Ziegfeld, and the answer he made to each, will be included.

DEMAND SETS PRICE

Here is question No. 1, by Nicholas Young:

When, if ever, will the managers in New York solve the problem of ticket speculation?

And the answer, by Ziegfeld:

The question is going to dissolve itself down to supply and demand, and as long as there is no law against the existence of ticket speculators there is no individual or no group that can ever combine that will eliminate ticket speculation, and the amount they hold the public up for depends entirely upon the popularity of the attraction for which the ticket is sold.

Here is my present experience with my present show, "Smiles," in which Marilyn Miller and the Astaires are combined in one attraction, making three stars in one, and which opens at my own (Ziegfeld) Theater Nov. 18.

SCALPERS UNCHECKED

I put my tickets on sale at the box office three weeks in advance. The demand has been great. I also offered the public tickets through the mail, giving the mail orders preference and filling the orders in the order of their receipt, the time being stamped on every letter as it reached the box office and each order being taken care of the same as if the person had been at the box office window.

But in both instances, whether at the box office or by mail, the possibilities of so-called gyp speculators and diggers sending for tickets by mail, or sending substitutes to the window who were not known, to purchase them to be re-sold later at such prices as they might be able to get, were not eliminated.

The same holds good for the Postal Telegraph arrangement between the telegraph company and the League of Theaters. There is nothing to prevent a ticket speculator applying to the Postal Telegraph office for tickets for the hit attractions, and if that company is able to supply good seats to the public by the arrangement it has gone into with the managers of the league, then there is no reason why the speculator who applies cannot secure these good seats, and if the attraction is a popular one he is in a position to sell them for whatever he can get for them.

SOLD OUT HERE

In the last 30 years I have tried in every way to protect the public against ticket speculation. During the runs of "Rio Rita" and "Show Boat" at the Ziegfeld Theater, more than $5,000,000 worth of tickets were sold to the public at box office prices.

Here in Boston we have played to the absolute capacity of the Colonial Theater at a $5.50 scale and every seat has been sold for every performance, the receipts averaging $5600 a night and $4400 the matinee, which means that 300 or 400 people were standing at every performance.

Still, the cost of bringing the production to Boston was so enormous that, at capacity business, the show will show a loss of between $30,000 to $35,000 on the three weeks, owing to the fact that I had to bring musicians over here, stage hands, directors, and meet additional expenses which rehearsals compel.

Tomorrow, Producer Ziegfeld will comment on talking pictures and their effect on the legitimate theater, and the effect of Hollywood "easy money" on the mental attitude of players.

FLORENZ ZIEGFELD, master showman, discusses problems of the theater in a series of articles which begins today in the Boston Evening American. Today Ziegfeld tells why ticket speculation cannot be eliminated.

Wales Urges Young Know War Horrors

London, Nov. 12—The Prince of Wales, in an address last night before ex-service men and women who jammed Albert Hall for the British Legion's annual "festival of empire and remembrance," made a stirring appeal that the rising generation should not be allowed to forget the horrors of war.

"We do not want another war," declared the Prince amid a storm of cheering. "We must not even contemplate one and, above all, we must do our utmost to avoid any war."

Germany Stands By Reparation Pacts

Berlin, Nov. 12 (AP)—Preparation by the Reichstag foreign relations committee of a record of German reparations payments to the former enemy countries in no wise means that Germany is preparing to seek further revision of the reparations agreements, the Associated Press learned today on high authority. It is merely a routine procedure, due to expiration of the old and convening of the new Reichstag.

$250,000 Willed for School Boys, Girls

New Haven, Conn., Nov. 12 (AP)—A fund of $250,000 to provide preparatory and college scholarships for promising grammar school graduates is created by the will of Mrs. Grace Salisbury Foote, widow of Ellsworth I. Foote, for many years president of the New Haven Water Co. The scholarships will be for "American boys and girls, graduates of grammar schools, who show promise of becoming useful citizens."

TWO KILLED AS TRAIN RAMS AUTOMOBILE

Capt. Charles A. Wolfe, Boston fire department veteran, and his sister-in-law, Mrs. Margaret Willis of Natick, are dead at Emerson Hospital in West Concord, and his wife lies dying from injuries suffered late yesterday when Wolfe's car was struck by a Boston & Maine express at a West Acton crossing.

The crash happened in the heart of West Acton when Wolfe, apparently failing to see the warning signal, drove directly into the path of the speeding train, the crack Berkshire express. The machine was hurled into the air, a crumpled mass.

Capt. Wolfe's wife, Mrs. Elizabeth Wolfe, suffered broken arms, ribs and a leg, the loss of an eye, internal injuries and a probable fracture of the skull. Her name has been placed on the danger list and she is not expected to live through the day.

Mr. and Mrs. Wolfe lived at 20 Ashford st., Allston, a short distance from Engine 34, to which the captain was assigned. Mrs. Willis lived with her son at 404 North st., Natick.

Capt. Wolfe was one of the oldest in point of service, and best known members of the Boston fire department. In 1892 he entered the department service and after 16 years was made a lieutenant in 1908. He was advanced to the grade of captain in 1924.

3 IN WEDDING RACKET GUILTY

New York, Nov. 12—Mrs. Sally le Blanch, 21-year-old blonde, better known as Ruth Miller; her sister-in-law, Mrs. Rose Madeson, 38, and her husband, Jack Madeson, were all found guilty yesterday of grand larceny in connection with their "marriage racket."

Ruth was the girl who advertised she would marry any man who would give her aged mother $1000. She got two would-be husbands, a Japanese and a taxi driver, and they both paid several hundred dollars as sort of a retainer fee. Then Ruth, already married, left town.

The verdict was returned in Long Island City by a jury which recommended mercy in the case of Ruth.

Tunney Wins Legal Bout

HERE'S THE CHAMPION, Gene Tunney, surrounded as in the days of his fistic battles by a throng of admirers, congratulating him on his latest victory, that over Tim Mara, promoter, who sued him for $500,000. Now Tunney faces another court battle next week, when the suit of Max Hoff, who wants a slice of Tunney's earnings, begins. (I. N. R. photo.)

New York, Nov. 12 (AP)—Victor in his $326,000 court fight with Timothy J. Mara, sports promoter, Gene Tunney prepared today for another legal struggle next Monday, when the suit of Max (Boo Boo) Hoff of Philadelphia, is scheduled to begin.

Hoff is suing for 20 percent of Tunney's earnings, more than $400,000, alleging he had an oral contract with Tunney. In support of his claims, he submitted a document which Tunney admits he signed, using the name "Eugene J. Tunney," although his correct name is "James J." Tunney says it merely was an acknowledgement of a $20,000 claim against Billy Gibson, Tunney's ex-manager.

Einstein Coming to U. S. Next Month

Berlin, Nov. 12 (INS)—Prof. Albert Einstein, world famous scientist and mathematician, is planning to visit the United States shortly.

"It will be strictly a private trip," Mrs. Einstein told International News Service.

It is understood the scientist and his wife plan to sail aboard the Belgenland, December 2, and stay aboard for the trip through the Panama Canal to Los Angeles. Later they will proceed overland to New York.

SOMETHING TO THINK ABOUT

Editor Boston American:

With the business depression breaking up, we have one thing to congratulate ourselves on, and it is that we have learned more about combating panics. Back in 1837, 1857, 1873 and 1893 we had doses of panics, and some people were forced to live on bread and molasses.

Panics were more oppressive to business than anything that we have gone through the past 12 months. Following the World War in 1921, we had a period that was very trying to every business man, with economic explosions going off and in many ways more subversive than previous demonstrations of this kind, but we actually suffered little and regained our feet again.

Times are coming when we can avoid business depression by new methods, just as we have applied agencies to ward off panics. The ingenuity of the banker will help more than ever the business man to steer clear of the rocks ahead. He will be the best pilot.

N. H. JACKSON.

Causes of Crime Are Traced to Source

Editor Boston American:

Is is not about time for some speakers on crime to get back at the causes and where we make criminals? Any city or town that tolerates road houses and slums must cease to criticise the type of youths it is turning out of the schools.

Schools have their share of reform. When boys and girls are allowed the freedom of going where they please evenings without parents' consent, and when they live in congested parts of cities, called slums, don't blame the schools for not moulding sufficiently the morals of youths, when they do their share but parents do not co-operate with schools.

Abolish roadhouses and slums and then see how serviceable public schools are and how they value co-operation.

N. H. NIXON

Good Radio Programs Come in Too Early

Editor Boston American:

As I write this, a most beautiful program of classical and semi-classical music is coming over the radio. It is but 9:30 in the morning—an hour when most people are much too busy to be giving much attention to the radio.

Why, oh why, don't these lovely programs come on in the evening — when they could be so thoroughly enjoyed!

Heavens knows I'm what is called a "Modern," but I do get tired of listening to everlasting syncopation.

Killing Turkeys for Thanksgiving Criticized

Editor Boston American:

An incongruous mixture, this season of thanksgiving. From 1621 to 1930 America has rendered thanks (?) with a mouthful of dead turkey—and some gather in churches to hear a mockery of more thanks. With Peter Stuyvesant heading the customs instituted, wild turkeys were killed and eaten—they all trailed to church and thanked their God—supposing He made wild turkeys for their benefit.

Harvest festivals and ceremonials have been held since times immemorial, and Moses taught his people to make part offerings and to leave gleanings of crops for the poor and the stranger. That spirit is well, but why kill and eat defenseless creatures?

As we become more cultured the custom of killing must lessen—as it is already doing. Do not add to the unhappiness of others, ~~but help~~ not hinder. The world was not made for man,—and was not made at all—simply developed by natural laws of selection and environment.

May we not, then since unlike our ancestors, who were many times compelled to eat flesh—also develop on higher planes and permit our speechless kindred to live their lives?

JEAN ROBERTS ALBERT.
Lewiston, Idaho.

Here's What "It" Does for Clara Bow

Editor Boston American:

Ah so Mr. Arthur "Bugs" Baer is the latest newspaper man to announce his prejudice against the ever-popular Clara Bow. Three loud meows to you this time, Mr. Baer, and three cheers to the most peppy and beautiful personality upon the living screen today.

One or two film critics in their cranky and far from interesting reviews of Miss Bow's pictures obviously expect to end this lovely star's screen career, but their efforts will be in vain. It is up to the moving picture public—the broad minded real critics, and judging their opinions, Clara Bow still remains the screen's most popular attraction.

B. HUTCHINSON.

Praises Broom Users of Swampscott Police

Editor Boston American:

Events in Boston that I want more information about:

Is it not greatly to the credit of the police of Swampscott that they know how to use a broom and that they do not believe it beneath their dignity to clean headquarters of the dust left by prisoners?

Was it not ignorance to pay 25 cents to see the inside of the Old North Church, and then expect to get vinegar out of the Vinegar Bible kept there as a Biblical treasure of the past?

Is it not a blessing for thousands of people visiting the Massachusetts General hospital to know that the 'El' station is being pushed at the corner of Cambridge and Charles sts.?

Is it not interesting to read this inscription in an old Colonial graveyard: "Here lies the body of Jonn Jack, a native of Africa, who died March, 1772 aged about 60 years. Though born in a land of slavery, he was born free. Though he lived in a land of liberty, he lived a slave."

Will not Mrs. Henry W. Peabody come back to Beverly after she feels the torrid atmosphere of Florida in the summer?

H. P. SNOW.

Points to Many Members of Clergy Who Smoke

Editor Boston American:

A woman of some prominence in her denomination is out with a statement that she will not support any minister who smokes. I know of a woman who would not allow her husband to smoke under any condition. She nagged him about it so much after finding him smoking in the woodshed that he hanged himself in remorse.

Another woman hated tobacco and cooked so badly that her husband had to get some comfort out of life by using the weed, but she berated him so much that he took to drink to silence the noise of his wife's voice. This was before prohibition times.

Charles H. Spurgeon, Baptist minister smokes a pipe. Bishop Brooks smoked the best cigars. Three-fourths of the Episcopal ministers in the diocese of Massachusetts puff smoke from tobacco.

N. M. MESSINGER.

Likens Eighteenth Amendment to an Act of Anarchy

Editor Boston American:

In a speech delivered in Boston some 50 years ago, Theodore Parker defined the American idea of a democracy as a government of the people. Upshaw of Georgia, in a certain quasi-spurious publication, intimated that after the Supreme Court made its decision on the Eighteenth Amendment nothing remained but passive obedience to its ruling and decree.

This false claim contradicts every precedent of American history and every principle of American law.

When the supreme reason of the Constitution is contraverted by any clause as the Eighteenth Amendment, loyalty to the Constitution then demands not supreme obeisence to its mandates, but an appeal for rehearing to all the people, as the sole supreme arbiters, of the supreme reason of the law.

Government without principle is anarchy, and this lack of principle is manifested by the enactment of the Eighteenth Amendment by a militant obligarchy who had waxed rich on the fabulous profits of war. Upshaw who is merely an ignominious tool of the money barons, is peddling their padlock wares to abrogate the rights of a people, in a government by force.

This same splenatic Upshaw had the base effronting to summon the shade of Washington to vindicate his fanatic assertion that if now living he would be a worthy example of obedience to the Eighteenth Amendment. Washington mutined against the laws of England, of which he was a subject, and by precept and example won the war.

THOMAS SCULLY.
Somerville.

Terms U. S. Greatest of Sporting Countries

Editor Boston American:

Former President Coolidge says many good things out of his well stocked mind of knowledge, but I think at times he errs, from handling too many subjects on which, apparently, he has only a superficial acquaintance with.

This is true when he says of sports, as reported in the newspapers, "It is generally considered as a nation we are not interested in sports."

This is not true. If he had said we are too much interested in sports he would have come closer to the truth.

Wherever I go through the United States, I am very much taken with the way that the young generation, both boys and girls, are carried away with sporting ventures. It is natural for boys to play football, for instance, but there is a growing tendency among girls to take this up with some modifications. I believe that we are the greatest nation on the farce of the globe for sports, and we are becoming more so.

$5,000,000,000 CONGRESS IS NEAR

Washington, Nov. 12 (INS)—The long-predicted "five billion-dollar Congress" approached today as House appropriations sub-committees began work on the supply bills through which Congress annually provides the funds to maintain the government.

With appropriations of the last session totalling $4,872,016,000, and the administration prepared to recommend huge appropriations for public works to relieve unemployment, there is a strong possibility that the five-billion mark may be expected, committee members say.

The Hoover administration has made strenuous efforts through budget recommendations to economize, and prevent the Treasury from going in the "red." On the other hand, there is pressure on all sides for huge sums to speed public works.

Chairman Will R. Wood (R.) of Indiana was to return here today to start sub-committees on the Interior Department and the Treasury-Post-office Department bills on their work.

The Treasury Department bill contains apropriations for prohibition enforcement. The budget recommendation is understood to call for a $2,000,000 boost for more agents.

Bryan's Grandson Is Winning Actor Fame

Chicago, Nov. 12 (AP)—The eloquence of the gallant young Lorenzo who woos Jessica, daughter of Shylock in the "Merchant of Venice" at the Civic theater has been noted by the patrons of Shakespearian drama. Glancing at their programs, they have discovered that the actor's name is John Bryan, and then have forgotten. It is now revealed that "John K. Bryan" is a grandson of William Jennings Bryan.

His identity was disclosed in a visit by his mother, Congresswoman Ruth Bryan Owen of Florida. He is her son by a former marriage, John Bryan Leavitt.

Junkers Plane in France

Bordeaux, France, Nov. 12 (AP)—The Junkers airplane, G-38, arrived here today from Vittoria, Spain, on its tour of Europe. It will remain overnight.

PORT OF BOSTON

That the ocean has a peculiar fascination for landsmen is being proven daily at some of the wharves.

At the centrally located T wharf, for instance, people have been observed at early hours engaged merely in watching small boats arrive. This wharf has visitors at all hours during the day, but a large portion of them seem to make their appearance at day-break to watch the harbor begin its day.

Despite the faithful and truthful publicity announcements of city bureaus that no one actually knows where the "Indians" dumped the British tea in the harbor, visitors to this dock usually are found to have a fixed idea that T wharf was named for that reason.

TRADE CONSULS

Two experts of the foreign and domestic commerce department will be at the Custom House offices this week for conferences. J. H. Ehlers, assistant commercial attache at Tokyo, Japan, will be here on Thursday until the end of the week. He is a specialist on construction machinery. W. B. Hertz, leather trade commissioner at large for Europe, will be here today and until Nov. 22. He will confer with New England leather firms.

HOOVER LIKELY TO HOLD OFF COURT FIGHT

Washington, Nov. 12 (US)—Despite strong pressure from pacifist sources, few believed today that President Hoover would ask the Senate to ratify the revised League Court formula at the December session.

There was a strong probability that the court issue would be pushed aside temporarily to allow Congress to grapple with the more important problems of employment, expansion of public works and government finances.

The League Court question, it was agreed, would just about ruin the legislative program and the new "harmony program" of Republicans and Democrats if placed before the Senate next month, at this short session, which extends only until March 4, all the supply bills of the government must be passed, and measures adopted to revive employment.

With the opposition to the court mounting rapidly, a minimum of several weeks would be required to debate the issue, especially the Root-Hurst formula which is designed to replace the original Senate safeguarding reservations.

South's First Air Rum-Runner Caught

Columbia, Miss., Nov. 12 (AP)—Inauguration of sky liquor transportation in the South was believed to have had its wings clipped by sheriff's deputies who today guarded a large cabin plane pending arrival from New Orleans of federal investigators. The plane, said to be the first carrier seized in the southern district, was destined for Grand Rapids, Mich., when forced down here. The pilot was held.

"My doctor told me this beauty secret"

HE said, "The essence of beauty is health—the foundation of health is proper nutrition." Beauty specialists recommend the drinking of milk and the eating of foods made or served with milk. Milk feeds the tissues easily and naturally—contains nothing to irritate the skin from within—balances the diet. It makes for glowing health—the beauty of contour and line that is more than "skin deep."

And milk goes even further than this. It builds up a reserve supply of energy which dispels fatigue — prevents the "drawn look" and "crow's feet" so marring to beauty. This is the "secret" my doctor told me—a secret every man, woman and child should know—milk will make you more attractive.

CONN. URGED TO SECEDE FROM N. E. STATES

Storrs, Ct., Nov. 12 (AP)—E. Kent Hubbard, president of the Connecticut Manufacturers' Association, today declared Connecticut should desert New England in consideration of her industrial, commercial and agricultural future.

The statement was made in his annual report convention at the Connecticut State Agricultural College.

The solution of our economic troubles, he diagnosed, lay in the increase of consuming power.

As one phase of the necessary increase in buying power, he declared himself as opposed to highly restricted immigration, saying the immigrant was to a greater extent a consumer than a producer.

Concerning the suggestion that Connecticut secede from New England, Mr. Hubbard presented figures tending to show that this State has nothing in common with the northern states except tradition. Connecticut, he declared has advanced further industrially, commercially and agriculturally than the rest of this area. The State should be included in the New York Federal Reserve District, inasmuch as it is a part of the New York industrial district.

The rest of the world, he pointed out, speaks of the decline of New England and includes Connecticut in that estimate. Such an attitude hurts the State. However, facts show that Connecticut's economic future is assured, whereas that of the remainder of these states depends on greater development of their agricultural and recreational possibilities.

Britain Pledged to Treat Jews Fairly

London, Nov. 12 (AP)—Prime Minister MacDonald told Commons today that the British government intends to carry out its obligations under the mandate to both sections of the Palestine population.

No ordinances on the basis of the recent "White Paper" regarding the British attitude toward Jews and Arabs in Palestine will be framed before there has been discussion of the "White Paper" in the House, he said.

Eaton Blames Banks for Business Slump

Washington, Nov. 12 (AP)—Representative Eaton, Republican, New Jersey, called at the White House today to discuss the unemployment situation in New Jersey with the President. Later he expressed opinion that bankers of the country largely were responsible for the continued business depression. Money in banks today, he said, should be placed at the disposal of industry and private persons for development.

Banker Tries Death on Losing Millions

Detroit, Nov. 12 (INS)—Bart H. Manning, prominent banker and clubman, who, according to friends, spoke of having lost $2,00,000 in recent years in real estate dealings, today shot himself in what police described as a suicide attempt. Discovery of the wounded man followed receipt of a special delivery letter posted to an undertaker yesterday.

$110,000 Debt Holds Up Byrd's Next Hop

Chicago, Nov. 12 (INS)—Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd, explorer of two poles, today admitted he is looking forward to his next expedition. This venture, however, will not be inaugurated until he liquidates the $110,000 debt which remains from his Antarctic expedition, he said.

MAJ. BOUTWELL RAPS AIRPORT CONDITIONS

By GEORGE HAMBLIN

Massachusetts will lose the 101st Observation Squadron National Guard unless immediate action is taken on the hangar situation at the Boston Airport.

Maj. Louis E. Boutwell, commanding officer, declared today that, with the air unit on probation until December the belief that the Militia Bureau in Washington would take the unit away for lack of facilities, is not founded on absolute fact.

Boutwell states that he believes there is an even chance for the Guard unit being awarded to some other state, leaving Massachusetts without one of its best advertisements for aviation.

FUNDS SOUGHT BY SQUAD

Announcement of the placing of a bill calling for an appropriation of $200,000 in the new military budget has been made, with Gov. Allen and Brig.-Gen. Jesse F. Stevens in whole-hearted accord with the measure.

Passage of the bill will result in new, modern quarters for the guard unit, with offices, hangars, shops and storerooms all contained in one building.

The present hangars used by the squadron were first constructed in 1917 and have been used by the guard since its establishment at the airport. Last year when the airport area was enlarged the hangars were moved to their present location at the northwestern end of the field. Moving and the action of the elements have so rusted the buildings that gaping holes are in evidence on the sides, doors and roofs. It is impossible to heat the hangars.

MECHANICAL CORPS CUT

"It is out of the question to maintain the Guard in its present quarters," Boutwell stated today. "The personnel of the mechancial section has been cut from 80 to 65 men. This is not sufficient to keep the unit operating, and I must hire civilian labor and pay them from funds outside the State appropriation.

"The assurances offered that the Guard will not be taken away by the Militia Bureau are not altogether sound. My personal opinion is that the bureau will award the unit to some other state. One state has already offered to spend $250,000 if they are given a unit.

"The federal government spent $1,900,000 this year on the 19 Guard air units in the country, or about $100,000 per unit. I think the State of Massachusetts can afford to spend $100,000 or more for one year to give the unit livable and workable quarters."

RED CROSS FLIGHTS

Newspaper offices were deluged with inquiries last night, asking what airplane had caught fire and plunged to earth. Investigation revealed that the plane was a Stearman owned by Skyways, Inc., at Boston Airport, carrying a large Red Cross sign suspended underneath, floodlighted with red lights. The plane, with the red sign illuminated, closely resembled a ball of fire i. th sky. Crocker Snow and Charlie Emerson flew the ship. Other flights will be made from now until Christmas, advertising the Red Cross campaign.

GRANGE MAPS OUT AID FOR FARMER

Rochester, N. LY., Nov. 12 (AP)—Only through adherence to a definite program will the Grange obtain equality for agriculture, National Master Louis J. Taber today told delegates to the convention of the National Grange.

"Not by special favors to the farmer, through government aid or otherwise," said Taber, "But by a program embracing such practical subjects as better marketing methods, restriction of irrigation and reclamation projects and a more justly distributed system of taxation, will the Grange be successful in its effort to obtain equality for agriculture."

Taber characterized the 18th amendment "as the greatest moral reform of the century" and said it must be sustained. He added its supporters must awaken or they would "lose the fruits of their great victory."

Corporation farming was described by the grange leader as a menace to the best community life of the nation in rural areas. Its spread, he said, would be strenuously opposed by the grange.

PLUTO WATER STANDARD LAXATIVE ON OCEAN LINERS

YOU may go where you like, and when you like, but old Constipation follows you wherever you go. Fortunately, though, Pluto Water—America's physic—follows you, too!

Take the big ocean liners, for instance. They haven't any room for halfway remedies. They've got to have medicines that work—the first time, every time! Their medical supplies are limited to essentials.

They all carry Pluto Water. Even the big foreign ships . . . ships that come from countries where you find mineral springs everywhere—Aix, Vichy, Carlsbad, Wiesbaden, Marienbad, Nauheim—carry American Pluto Water! Pluto Water is the universal choice afloat and ashore!

That is true for just one reason—the remarkable efficacy of Pluto Water. Pluto acts every time—and it acts quickly When the poison germs in delayed waste matter are held over in the intestinal tract, there is no time for slow or uncertain measures. The poisons must be removed, and removed promptly, before they bring on more serious complications.

Doctors everywhere recommend Pluto Water, and have prescribed it for fifty years. They recognize the superior merit of this saline water laxative that works within 30 minutes to two hours after taking. They know, too, that Pluto, being a saline water laxative, will not gripe or harm delicate tissues. It cleans in nature's way—gently though promptly and positively—through water-washing the tract.

Pluto Water brings you all the health benefits of the famous French Lick saline mineral springs at French Lick, Indiana, America's greatest spa. Thousands visit these renowned springs every year in their quest for better health. You, too, can enjoy these same health benefits—today—in your own home—with bottled Pluto Water. ### Like Leonard and Tendler,, Callahan and Fuller Will ↕ Match Right Hand Against Southpaw in Title Thriller

Xmas Fund Duel Repetition of Ring Classic

The two greatest lightweight duels of modern times were the twin world's lightweight title tilts beween Benny Leonard and Lew Tendler. What helped to make the encounters such hair-raisers were the styles of the two. Leonard, the Young Master, boxed in the orthodox fashion. Tendler was a southpaw. Like Benny Leonard, Sammy Fuller, New England lightweight champion, boxes in the orthodox fashion. Like Lew Tendler, Andy Callahan, whom Fuller defends his title against in the big Christmas Fund Show in the Arena next Monday night, is a southpaw. And folks, unless all the signs along the trail are read wrongly, you are going to see as cockle of the heart warming a scrap between the two Bay State boys, next Monday, as the great Leonard and his southpaw rival from Philadelphia, put on in New York a decade ago.

Those Leonard-Tendler duels live forever in the memories of those who were fortunate enough to see them. In the first match the wonderful Leonard, the greatest lightweight boxing has seen since the palmy days of Joe Gans, trembled on the very verge of a knockout abyss. For a few precious seconds the world's lightweight championship dangled right in front of Lefty Lew. King Benny's superb ring generalship saved his throne. Benny figuratively talked Tendler out of the title.

George Underwood

The crisis came in the sunset session of the great encounter. For seven or eight rounds the two great 135-pounders had fought savagely, bitterly, with the tide of battle ebbing and flowing, and the issue ever in doubt. Tendler's southpaw style nonplussed the great Leonard. Try as Benny might, he could not keep Lou from landing those club like lefts, especially venomous left hand smashes to stomach and wind.

The contest was drawing to a close. One or two more rounds to go. Just how many, we do not recall. Anyway, it was either in the eighth or ninth rounds when the thing happened that almost resulted in the passing of the world's lightweight championship and the crowning of a new king.

The usual way to spike a southpaw's gun is to beat him to the punch. A right hander tries to get inside with his right and beat the southpaw's left.

This Leonard had been attempting, but with only mediocre success. Tendler was in the fighting pink. That venomous left of his was flashing out with the speed of a striking rattler.

A THRONE TREMBLES

The great Leonard was driven back on his heels with the jolt. His knees crumpled. The cobwebs clouded his eyes. He was toppling on the verge of a knockout. One more punch would have finished him.

But Leonard, the great Leonard, despite sagging knees and foggy eyes, still had his great fighting head about him.

Throughout the fight Benny had fought silently, grimly.

Now he suddenly commenced to josh his rival.

"Huh," joshed Benny. "So you're the great Tendler, eh? Why I thought I was going to have a fight on my hands. But it is like taking candy from a kid. Say, you can't punch a lick. You can't dent a cream puff."

Tendler, instead of stepping in with the coup de grace that would have toppled over Leonard and won the world's championship, started to talk back to Leonard.

While Lou was talking Benny was "coming back."

It took only a few seconds, but oh such precious seconds, for Benny's head to clear and the strength to flow back in his limbs.

A few seconds, and then Leonard was dancing around on nimble legs again, that left of his darting out with the speed and skill of a fencing master with a Damascus blade, and the right beating Tendler to the punch.

Yet no man was nearer to the world's championship, without actually winning it, than Lou Tendler was in that first duel with the great Leonard.

The second fight between Leonard and his southpaw rival was a Leonard classic. In the interval between the fights Leonard had invented a scheme by which he turned Tendler's dreaded southpaw slams against Tendler himself. This is how Benny did it.

MASTERLY STRATEGY

Instead of trying to beat Tendler to the punch, as in the first encounter, Leonard waited and blocked it and then hit, and all in the one and beautifully executed motion. Leonard was a real master.

That first Leonard block and counter virtually won the fight.

To the experienced fight fan it "was all over" after that exchange.

But Benny trumped that Tendler ace again and again.

Every time Lou's left would shoot out Benny would catch it on elbow and uppercut at the same time. To land his deadly left Tendler had to bring his own head within range of that deadly Leonord uppercut.

In the first Leonard-Tendler duel the honors practically were even. It was a tossup. In the second encounter Leonard fairly massacred the Philadelphia southpaw. Tendler, game as a lion and rugged as a broncho, lasted the distance, but that was all.

When righthander Sammy Fuller and southpaw Andy Callahan meet for the New England title in the Arena next Monday night, it will be the rubber encounter.

Callahan was on his way to the New England championship when he met Fuller the first time. Sammy was Andy's 21st straight victim. With the victory went the title.

Last summer in Tiverton the pair met again, and this time in a fierce, savage battle Fuller turned the tables and captured the crown.

Ever since then Callahan has had but one ambition, but one object in view. That was to get Fuller into the ring again and regain the title.

Andy and Sammy will crawl through the ropes again next Monday night. Who will leave the ring the champion is in the lap of the gods.

MAYOR WALKER DEFENDS RING

New York, Nov. 12 (INS)—Reports that an organized attempt would be made next year to repeal the Walker Boxing law, which permits professional boxing in New York State, aroused the ire of Mayor James J. Walker today.

The Walker bill, which he crafted to put an end to abuses existing in boxing, became a law in 1920. The mayor declared today that if necessary he would attend the next session of the New York legislature in January and defend the law.

Renewal of attempts to abolish professional boxing in this state comes as an aftermath of the Tunney-Mara law suit with its testimony that high political influence had been sought to have the first Dempsey-Tunney fight staged in this city instead of in Philadelphia.

Mayor Walker pointed out that the judge and counsel for both sides at the Tunney-Mara trial had agreed that no evidence incriminating politicians or members of the New York State Athletic Commission had been introduced.

Fist Fight Mars Game at Ottawa

Ottawa, Ont., Nov. 12—Ottawa opened the National Hockey League season here with a 2-to-0 victory over the Maroons.

The Senators outplayed the Maroons throughout, but the biggest factor in Ottawa's victory was the many penalties the Maroons incurred. They checked ruggedly throughout, and were forced to play shorthanded through most of the second and third periods.

The battle was marked by a fist fight between Hooley Smith and Harold Starr, and both were banished with major penalties.

Put on Real

By MR. BOSTON

Say, folks, I've a confession to make.

I have always felt that there has always been a great deal of unnecessary harshness connected with the boxing game. It has grieved me to hear some of our carefree boxers put their ring rivals on the pan.

Only the other day I read about how Andy Callahan and Sammy Fuller, who clash in a 10-round bout at the New Boston Arena on next Monday night, at a Christmas Fund show, had almost come to blows in Eddie Mack's Argonne A. A. office.

Therefore, when Callahan and Fuller breezed into the American office about the same time yesterday for the purpose of having some action pictures taken, I decided I would act as a peacemaker.

I decided to trot the two kids out in front of the camera and have them mitt each other in friendly fashion.

I put the big idea up to Fuller.

"You cannot expect me to bury the hatchet with Callahan," said Sammy. "He has said too many unkind things about me for that. All I ask is that he remain in the ring long enough Monday night for me to stiffen him. Callahan is strong and tough, but he's a poor ring general, and I can lick him any night in the week."

That for being a peacemaker

Callahan Will Say It With Left Hand Punches

But I didn't quit. I asked Callahan if he would ask Fuller to smoke the pipe of peace with him.

"Not me," replied Callahan. "Fuller thinks too highly of himself for me to do that. I'll say my say with left hand punches Monday night."

The feeling existing between Callahan and Fuller is on the up and up. It reminds me of the feud that existed between Jack Sharkey and Jim Maloney prior to their New York bout.

This is what makes these local ring wars so interesting. The boys don't come to town on the same train, while they are not found talking things over at the same hotel just before the battle.

Fuller comes from the North End and has a large following which wants to see him knock Callahan for a row of goals.

Callahan hails from Lawrence where he is as big a local idol as Young Kloby was when he was in the nose-busting business.

Fuller and Callahan Want Shot at Singer

Fuller and Callahan have punched their way to stardom. Now each is eager to secure a bout with Al Singer for the world's lightweight title.

I'm going to be right down close to the ring when Sammy and Andy start barraging next Monday night. I wouldn't miss this scrap for anything.

Matchmaker Eddie Mack of the Argonne club is donating 50 per cent of the profits of the show to the Christmas Fund of the Boston Evening American.

A great charity.

A brilliant fight.

Of course, you're going.

Whether Princeton can wean Rockne away from Notre Dame is questionable. "Rock" is well fixed financially. He receives a large salary from the South Bend institution and with his other sources of revenue, newspaper and magazine articles and his radio talks, he is believed to be receiving $75,000 per year.

Dick Hanley May Get California Job

If there is a change made at the University of California, Dick Hanley, the present Northwestern coach, may receive the call.

Hanley is one of the greatest coaches in the game and it is a well known fact that he would consider a berth on the Pacific Coast.

A year ago Hanley told the writer that there are only three sections of the country where he would coach, Boston, Chicago and San Francisco.

Dismissed Coach Settles Mixup

Iowa City, Ia., Nov. 11 (AP)—Charles R. Brookins, whose matrimonial affairs caused his dismissal as assistant track coach at the University of Iowa, raced back to Iowa City today, having succeeded in the last of three hurried attempts in three states to obtain a license to re-wed in a legal way Miss Dorothy Covey, his third wife.

His recent previous marriage to her became unlawful when it was discovered that his second wife had not yet obtained a divorce. She got the decree, however, shortly after Brookins had taken his third wife had been charged with bigamy and discharged from the university.

Brookins displayed a certificate of marriage, showing the ceremony was performed at Canton, Lewis county, Mo., yesterday. Earlier yesterday he was refused licenses at Rock Island, Ill., and Kahoka, Mo., and had had no luck in Iowa.

Dartmouth Loses Frigard, Star Back

Hanover, N. H., Nov. 12—Aarne Frigard, Dartmouth right halfback, will not play against Cornell this Saturday, it was announced here after the diminutive halfback had received his second serious injury this season, a split hand, in the early minutes of yesterday's drill of the Dartmouth squad on Memorial Field.

Penalty Ru [redacted] in Bruins' Opener

ART ROSS TO SUGGEST CHANGE

By BILL GRIMES

During the opening game of the National Hockey League season last night at the Boston Garden, which, incidentally, was won by the Bruins, 1 to 0, when Dit Clapper, the popular Bruins' right winger, counted in the first chapter, it was evident that the New York Americans were as unfamiliar with the new delayed penalty rule as the capacity crowd.

About half way through the opening period, Billy Burch and Red Dutton drew minor penalties, and before they were comfortably seated Joe Simpson joined them for tripping Dutch Gainor.

Bill Grimes

According to the new rule, "If a third player of any team shall be penalized, while two players of the same team are serving penalties, the penalty time of the third player shall not commence until the penalty time of one of the two penalized players already penalized shall have elapsed. Nevertheless, the third player penalized must at once proceed to the penalty bench but may be replaced by a substitute until such time as the penalty time of the penalized player shall commence."

Although rules No. 4 and 30 are far from clear, as far as this specific case is concerned, the approved ruling is that at the expiration of the first penalized player's time, said player MUST wait until play has been stopped and then he MUST return to his own bench. If, after the rules have been conformed with, a manager desires to replace the player who substituted for the third penalized player, he may do so.

Present Rules Cause of Much Confusion

Until such a time as the present arrangements of handling penalized players are abolished, there will always be more or less confusion. At the Garden and in Montreal, the players' benches are on opposite sides of the rink which necessitates visiting players skating across the ice to reach their bench after being released from the bastile.

Manager Art Ross has a solution for the present difficulties, which would be twofold if adopted. Ross suggests that a penalty clock be established in all National Hockey League rinks, which will flash the number or numbers of penalized players and the lights remain on until the expiration of the exile. Furthermore, he states that if penalty clocks were adopted penalty boxes could be abolished, for players would return to their benches.

Ross' idea is well worth consideration. The fans would be keenly interested in the time remaining to be served and there would be no more rough and tumble fights staged in penalty boxes.

Americans' Manager Responsible for Mix-Up

Regarding the mixup Billy Burch had last night, the confusion was due to Eddie Gerard, the manager of the New York Americans, forgetting his signals. Before the game, the timers agreed to signal the managers, by standing up, when with three men off the ice a player had only ten seconds to serve in the box.

With Burch, Dutton and Simpson in the box, and Norman Hines serving as Simpson's substitute, the timer stood up but evidently Gerard had too much on his mind, watching the Bruins sending attack after attack at Roy Worters.

Anyway, Gerard did not signal Himes to come off the ice, and then to further complicate matters, Burch not only failed to skate over to his bench, which called for a minor penalty but he picked up a major by entering into the play, for his return and the presence of Himes in action, with two men still in the box really gave the Americans a seven man team.

Before the opening of the season Manager Ross attempted to have the N. H. L. adopt his penalty clock idea but, as usual, no action was taken on the matter. Present conditions are going to produce many protests from the fans and it is very probable that before the season is well under way, the Ross system will be in vogue.

ynn English Coach Ranks With Best in Country

Editor's Note: This is the eighth of a series by Bill Connell, olboy sports editor of the Boston Evening American, on prominent ol football coaches. The concluding two articles of the series, y and tomorrow, tell of Tom Whelan, great athlete, coach and iaman.

By BILL CONNELL

Coaching schoolboys only five years in a North Shore high ol; content for the present to work with his lads while achieving mere local fame; yet known well and favorable all over the try in football and baseball circles is Tom Whelan, Lynn Eng- igh head coach.

n Made Lynn English Best Teams in Country

schoolboy team is great on Not a point has been n it. On attack it is in a tself. Spinners, double and everse plays, laterals with rwards on the end, and forwards with laterals on the end are used by the team. It is remarkable how this group executes its complicated attack. Never is there a flaw in the precision of the plays. And only a wonderfully taught group of boys could play this kind of football. Tom Whelan is the answer.

"They're a great bunch," says Tom, in his smooth voice. "All close friends and every one loves the game."

That is Tom Whelan, ready to give the boys every bit of credit possible. Yet the players and sport fans know that it took this coach to bring out the best in the boys, to develop perfect harmony among the lads, and teach them to play the game and play it well.

Tom Whelan started his career in Lynn English high. He continued at Worcester Academy and was a noted athlete up to the time of his graduation from that school. Notre Dame, just at the threshold of its glorious football years, then held Whelan for one year. While at the South Bend institution Tom was on the football and baseball squads and, though a freshman, ran on the one-mile relay team.

Whelan Had Varied Collegiate Career

Two of Tom's friends, who were with him that year in Indiana, could not return to Notre Dame the next season. The young man did not want to be so far from home without his pals so he headed for Dartmouth. He stayed at Hanover half a year. Then the school authorities discovered Tom had played semipro baseball so they barred him from college competition in athletics though they stated they would be glad to have him as a student.

He couldn't see any fun in staying at college if sports were barred, so he left Dartmouth before mid term. Tom transferred to Georgetown and for two years was first baseman of the nine and star end on the football team.

Read tomorrow's Boston Evening American and follow Tom Whelan through a career as naval aviator in the World War and through subsequent experiences in the sports world.

Price to Speak After Big Game

Berkeley, Cal., Nov. 12 (INS)—The row raging around the ears of "Nibs" Price, California football coach, had abated somewhat today, but it is expected to break out anew after the California-Stanford contest a week from Saturday.

Price has indicated that he will have a statement to make at that time. Considerable dissatisfaction has been expressed in some quarters in connection with football affairs at California following the 74 to 0 defeat of the Bears Saturday by Southern California.

'H' REGULARS MUST FIGHT FOR PLACES

Several Harvard first-string gridmen, who had been kept out of work through injuries, returned to togs today, only to find themselves among the football unemployed across the Charles.

Vic Harding, Bob Ogden, Fred Richards, Bus Talbot, and some Harvard backs find themselves supplanted by their former relief men, and face a stiff task if they hope to climb back to first string rating in time for the Yale game.

Harding has been declared physically fit for several days, but in the daily workouts, Vahan Moushegian, 170-pound wing understudy continues to work out with Horween's first team, while Harding is kept on the sidelines.

Fred Richards, who has been rated as Horween's first choice at left tackle is now only one of three candidates for the job. Richards is meeting a strong challenge from Frank Kales, and Bill Trafford.

Bus Talbot must work hard for the next 10 days if he hopes to win back his spot at left guard, now occupied by Henry Myerson of Brookline. Talbot virtually lost his place on the Harvard team before the season was fairly started, and on three occasions returned to the lineup, only to be sent back on the arnica squad because of injuries.

Schereschewsky and Crickard Supplanted

The latest Harvard backfield lineup has Wood, Mays, Huguley and Bernie White playing a foursome behind the line. While the presence of Wood and Huguley causes no surprise, Harvard fans are wondering at the sudden shift of Mays for Crickard and White for Schereschewsky.

Sam Batchelder worked with the first team when Huguley went to the showers, and it is likely that Batchelder will see a full afternoon of work in the Stadium against Holy Cross Saturday.

Harvard '06 Heads Draw for Yale Game

BANTAM GOLF

JOE CASHMAN

Few outdoor courses remain open, but there is one in West Roxbury that is still doing business and plenty of it. That is the layout on Spring st. There is a clock putting green where players may practice while waiting to tee off and a course that covers close to 7000 square feet.

"Fore" ye golfers and peewee golfers. Here's a new course, the Petit at 18-20 Stuart st., that's got more tricks in it than a bagfull of monkeys. Neatly laid out in two floors of the building, the Petit Indoor Course offers the real golf fiend one of the best chances to try his skill.

Beginning at the first hole, this course presents a problem at each hole to the finish, and requires shots worthy of the best professional skill. Hazards of the course are every hazard that you can find outdoors—bunkers, sand traps and difficult shots to place you on the green.

* * *

The Petit course is open night and day, and is convenient to the shopping and theater district. Workers in office buildings near by will find a round of golf after luncheon a favorite recreation.

An endurance miniature golf contest will be launched at the Indoor Country Club, 2414 Massachusetts ave., North Cambridge, this evening, with Bill ("Snap") Baker of New York and Jack ("Moon") McLaughlin of Boston contending.

* * *

The aim of each will be to outlast the other, and they expect to be at it a week. They will play seven hours and rest an hour, than resume for another seven hours, and keep at it until one quits. In case they both quit at the same hour, their scores will decide the victor. The start will be at 10:30 p. m. and Mayor Russell has promised to fire the starting gun.

Sonnenberg's $10,000 Belt at Stake in Title Bout

BOSTON EVENING AMERICAN SPORTS

SHERRY GETS CRACK AT CHAMPION

By JACK CONWAY

Gus Sonnenberg's world's heavyweight wrestling championship and $10,000 diamond studded belt will hang in the balance when he clashes with Jack Sherry, Ohio State champion, in a finish bout, best two falls out of three, at the New Boston Arena tomorrow night.

Sonnenberg has been the most active champion in the history of the mat game. He has given all who have a [illegible] an opportunity to strive to lift his title.

Jack Conway

Gus has engaged in more than 100 bouts since he defeated Strangler Lewis at the Boston Garden a year ago last January. He has toured every section of the country and has added $[illegible] 000 to his bank account.

The wrestling game has been drawing [illegible] crowds in [illegible] of the big cities. Sonnenberg's activity has been largely responsible for this condition. His flying tackle has also added color to wrestling.

Ten years ago the average wrestling bout was lacking in [illegible] giants would [illegible] on [illegible] before a decision would be [illegible]

Football Dash Added to Wrestling Game

Sonnenberg changed everything. He brought the dash of the football field into the wrestling game. He electrified great crowds as he risked serious injury, lunging through the air intent upon bringing down his rivals with flying tackles.

One one occasion Sonny went hurtling between the top and middle ropes at the Arena. Like a bullet he whirled over the press row and crashed head first into a row of seats and then hit the floor.

Sonny's head was badly wounded. He was later removed to a hospital and treated for a concussion of the brain.

Even those persons who for years had hammered wrestling and questioned its honesty were compelled to admit that Sonny's dive through space was the most spectacular sport feat they ever witnessed.

Sonnenberg has attracted thousands of college men to the wrestling game. In addition to having played football at Dartmouth and at the University of Detroit, Gus has been active at sport entertainments staged at many other colleges. He is an idol with the [illegible] element and has the college [illegible] rooting for him every time he steps into action.

Sherry says he will wreck the hopes of Sonnenberg and his admirers tomorrow night. The Ohio champion licked the rugged Marin Plestina in his last local start, and feels he can also conquer Sonnenberg.

Impelletier to Meet Rogoff on Mat

The semi-final bout will bring together Rosario Impelletier, giant Italian wrestler, and Ivan Rogoff of Russia. Impelletier, 20 years of age, six feet seven inches tall and weighing 283 pounds, has created quite a stir in wrestling circles. He has won his last 11 matches and is confident he will also upset Rogoff.

Stanley Stasiak, Polish Lion, will collide with Dan Koloff, while Lee Wykoff, St. Louis University athlete, will tackle Harry Mamnus of Springfield.

German Army Team Beats U. S. Riders

New York, Nov. 12—The German army horse show team won its second victory in three years in the international military team event, defeating the pick of the jumpers from five other nations before a crowd of 12,000 at Madison Square Garden.

The three German horses—Kampfgesell, Dedo and Derby—turned in consistent performances, being charged with only 5½ faults. Lt. Harold Momm, Lt. Baron Hermann von Nagel and Lt. Ernst Hasse were astride the German jumpers which also won the event in 1928.

Second went to the United States army team, which was charged with 10 faults. Hungary was third, the Irish Free State fourth, while Canada and Sweden tied for fifth and sixth.

London, Nov. 12 (AP)—Tennis fans formed the majority of a big congregation at Holy Trinity church in Brompton rd. today when Joan Fry, noted tennis star, was married to Lieut. Tom Ashley Lakeman of the Royal Tank Corps.

The bride first met Lieut. Lakeman during the Bournemouth tennis tournament last August when she won the women's singles.

DAMON RUNYON SAYS:

Copyright 1930 [illegible]

New York, Nov. 12. Most of the seething mob that poured into Cameron County, Pennsylvania, and adjoining territory, the first of November, were after bear.

I am informed that upwards of 250,000 hunting licenses were issued in the State of Pennsylvania this year. I judge that most of the license holders headed for the hills of Cameron county at the opening of the hunting season.

I can readily understand why Mr. Hemphill got licked in the election. Most of his voters were out after bear. At least, [illegible] the bear hunters talked Hemphill, but none of them went home to vote.

Personally, I was seeking a tryst with that king of the game birds, the ruffed grouse. Up yonder in Cameron county, Pennsylvania, they call him a partridge. Also they call a Mongolian pheasant a partridge. Likewise a quail is a partridge in those parts. In fact, the only thing that isn't a partridge is a bear.

Be that as it may, I was one among many bear hunters in my quest for the ruffed grouse, a tough critter to find in any man's country. The bear hunters seemed inclined to take my errand lightly. I judged that they regarded bird hunting as among the minor diversions of mankind, though if you ask me a [illegible] smart, experienced ruffed grouse is tougher game than bear.

I have always [illegible] as a somewhat insipid [illegible], especially the black bear, which is indigenous to Pennsylvania. The black bear is mainly a genial hobo of the hills, who goes around eating roots, herbs and berries, and getting a big kick out of turning a rock and finding a lot of bugs and worms.

Runyon Sees Little Fun in Killing Black Bear

I never could see any [illegible] in shooting a black bear, because when and if you shoot one you are generally pretty well back in the woods, and then you have the problem of lugging anywhere from 250 to 600 pounds of bear corpse out to a road.

That is, if you desire the corpse, which most bear hunters do. They want to prove to their friends that they killed a bear.

All right, then, they have killed a bear. What next? If the hide is made into a rug, the moths get it. A moth and a bear rug are soul mates from taw. If it is made into a laprobe for an automobile someone is sure to steal it.

If it becomes a fur coat, it may wind up on the back of a Harvard undergraduate, and get all torn to pieces in the next battle to protect the Harvard goal posts. I saw at least a dozen raccoon hides in the form of coats ripped to shreds last Saturday as the Harvard wearers struggled valiantly against the marauders from Michigan.

So a bear is of little value. The cadaver of the bear is even less. I have browsed upon the corpse of a bear in [illegible] and I would just as soon partake of a nicely browned bit of shoe leather.

I have tasted bear meat cooked in stews, broils, bakes and frys, and I make nothing of it. I mean to say I do not care for bear meat, although the starving Esquimo are said to find it highly nourishing.

However, there are no starving Esquimo in Cameron County. Most of the bear hunters come from Pittsburgh, Bradford, Charleroi, Scranton and such towns.

Red Caps Help Distinguish Hunters From Bear

They all wear little caps of brilliant red while paging Brer Bear. This, a precaution against being beaned with a slug from the high power rifles packed by the bear hunters. Anything looks like a bear in the woods, and some of the hunters let fly without pausing to investigate their targets.

A couple of bear were killed while I was in Cameron County, and three hunters were still trying to get their eyeballs back in their skulls, bullets having whistled so close to their ears as to make their orbs pop out a foot.

The murdered bears were smallish, and rather infantile in appearance, and had little experience in life or they would have known better than to be hanging around those parts on November first.

The deer of that section of Pennsylvania are far wiser. You see 'em just now, by the dozen along the roads o' nights glaring at your auto headlights and acting most insolent, but when it comes on the first of December they fade into the hills.

GOOD GOLF

By CHESTER HORTON
"Golf's Greatest Teacher"

Letting your wrist work as involuntary muscles in your forward swing is, I maintain, one of the great fundamentals of golf. I truthfully can say that I have never known a par golfer who used his wrists otherwise with regard to his forward swing. The wrists may be directed to some extent in the back swing, but if you will let them take care of themselves in the forward swing they will come back as they should and do it much more effectively, so far as the ball is concerned, than you can consciously make them do. This involuntary wrist action takes place automatically for the reason that you cannot possibly swing with the verticle axis principle and swing through the ball without having your wrists "let themselves out" with the club, which they naturally will do of their own accord. Trying to "work" your wrists by "throwing" the clubhead brings about the complete defeat of this natural wrist action. Any other theory, as frequently advanced by synthetic experts, is sure to give you golfing troubles.

Fans Boo as Stribling Wins Slow Battle From De Kuh

Atlanta, Ga., Nov. 12 (I.S.)—Georgia's contender for the heavyweight crown, W. L. Young Stribling, chalked up another victory here when he was awarded the decision over Arthur De Kuh, Italian heavyweight, after a 10-round mixup.

The match was staged in an outdoor arena under threatening skies and did not prove the attraction expected. Only 4000 saw the battle.

Because of unfavorable weather conditions, Jack Dempsey, who was scheduled to referee the bout, was unable to fly from Columbus, Miss., to Atlanta. He officiated there at a fight last night.

Stribling weighed in at 191, while De Kuh tipped the scales at 220.

The tigerish attack which had flattened Otto von Porat, Phil Scott and K. O. Christner was missing in Stribling, and the slow fight and frequent clinching by both men was booed on several occasions by the fans.

Neither fighter landed a [illegible] damaging blow during the entire fight. De Kuh pounded Stribling hard about the body, while the Georgian also got in a series of body blows [illegible] with his shorts for the [illegible].

The first three rounds were [illegible] even, but Stribling won the fourth.

Stribling got his left working for a few moments in the sixth and peppered De Kuh about the head, but [illegible] were [illegible] [illegible] little weight.

Again in the ninth and 10th Stribling [illegible] De Kuh to the ropes, winging both hands, but the Italian always managed to clinch and hold Stribling until he was out of danger.

OLD GOLD SWEEPS PHILADELPHIA!

Scores nearly 2 to 1 over Nearest Rival in City-wide Test of 4 leading Cigarettes

By ROBERT RIPLEY, Himself

"Believe it or not, folks . . . I wish OLD GOLD would lose one of these tests. It would add to the excitement. But I can't change the facts.

"So far, in the nine public tests I have conducted, OLD GOLD has been chosen as the best cigarette, by a rousing majority.

"At Philadelphia, it was the same old story. 984 smokers each smoked and compared the four leading cigarettes with the brand names covered up by a black band. They didn't know which cigarette was which. But when they indicated the cigarette that tasted best . . . the result was a landslide for OLD GOLD.

"Believe it or not . . . I accepted the invitation to conduct these tests on the distinct understanding that O. G. would publish its defeats as well as victories.

"But so far, I haven't been able to get any OLD GOLD defeats."

Mary Macy to Wed

By CHOLLY KNICKERBOCKER

New York, Nov. 11 [illegible] some surprise in certain quarters that Mary Lloyd Macy and Nicholas S. Ludington will be married in this city Thursday instead of Philadelphia where they will make their future home.

The surprised ones, however, forget that both the bride, who has [illegible] from California, and the benedict-to-be have numerous family ramifications here in Gotham.

And their wedding in St. Thomas Church on Fifth ave., will be a signal social event.

"Nick," who is devoting his time and fortune to his aviation interests, is a son of the late Charles H. Ludington of the Quaker city. Mr. Ludington was interested in the Curtis Publishing Co. and left a large estate to his sons.

The mother of Nick Ludington was Ethel Saltus. Which makes Nick a cousin of Mrs. Elsie Saltus Mund. He also is a nephew of that conservative spinster, Katherine Ludington of Manhattan.

Mary has been spending her winters in New York for three years and she has a host of friends here.

Clubwomen Study Child Health

Statements of Dr. Mandel Sherman at Capital Increases Interest

By NANCY BREWSTER

In watching closely the developments of the White House conference on child health and protection Massachusetts clubwomen were today studying the statements of Dr. Mandel Sherman, a member of the committee for education and training, to this effect:

That fantasy is a real contribution to the development of the child's personality.

That boys and girls under 4 have similar fondness for playing with dolls.

That boys and girls under 4 show the same attitude toward life, the same interests and like the same kind of play.

Interested in preventive work with children with which his conference is definitely concerned, clubwomen anticipate anxiously the final reports of the conference.

The White House conference, particularly concerned with the preschool child, explains Dr. Sherman, will soon issue a report from its various branches showing statistics about the care and attention that is being given to this important group, which includes 16,000,000 children under the age of 6.

Psychiatrically speaking, the first six years of a child's life are his formative years, his fundamental years, the habit-forming years with which anxious parents are so taken up.

Of course a child can be fed too much fantasy, the doctor points out, but then, he can also be fed too much of anything—even milk.

He says:

"Contrary to common conception, boys below the age of four years show exactly the same attitude toward life, the same interests and like the same kind of play as girls within the same age limits. Boys of three and a half will play with dolls with as much enthusiasm as girls and girls like hammer and nails as well as the boys.

"It seems, obvious, therefore that the differences that develop between the two later in life are chiefly the result of social connotations. The number of children in a family does not necessarily increase their sociability. If there is a great age difference each child in the family is as isolated as an only child, for a child of eight, say, will not play with a child of two."

Women's City Club Will Hear Editor Talk on Election

Members of the Women's Club will have outlined to them tomorrow the real significance of the Nov. 4 election in the address of Willis J. Abbot, of the editorial board of the Christian Science Monitor, luncheon-speaker of the club at 12:30.

Mr. Abbot will discuss the influence of the recent elections throughout the country on the national affairs, domestic and foreign. He will be introduced by Miss Frances Curtis, president.

Announcement is made also of Dr. Hamilton Holt's address which comes Friday at 6:30 p. m., following a dinner in his honor at the clubhouse. "The Three Besetting Sins in Education" is the subject of his talk. Dr. Holt is president of Rollins College, Winter Park, Florida and an authority in the field of progressive education.

Tailored Trimness Proves Smart

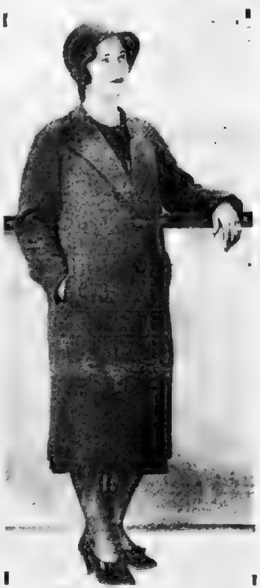
By ANN ARDEN



MODEL FROM THE WOMEN'S SHOP OF DELANO
—Boston Evening American Staff Photo.

IN THE midst of frills and furbelows, bows and billows of lace, a villain enters the fashion picture but a very handsome villain, for a dash of masculine smartness invades this era of graceful feminity. Just how many coats are needed for the average wardrobe is a problem that seems to worry us all.

COAT BUYING makes undeniable holes in the season's budget, so much so, in fact, that we rather hate to consider anything that looks like an extra. There is one coat, however, that we consider a necessity and an economy in the long run. That is the coat in tweed or similar woolen, tailored to trim perfection. Like a good masculine topcoat, it meets more than one season with the casual assurance of being right.

A RECENT house party guest wore a diagonal weave tweed coat of brownish shades—she wore it over her knit frock to view an outdoor sports event; and she slipped it over her riding togs when starting to be a more active participant, and it was correctly appropriate in either role.

* * *

THE ENGLISH topcoat pictured is of herringbone tweed in grayish brown shades. The raglan sleeves give plenty of width in the shoulders, and a semi-loose back, so that it may be worn over dress or suit with equal comfort. Its notched lapels and slant pockets proclaim themselves well tailored.

* * *

THE OUTING hat is of gray-brown mixture felt, with a shallow crown, snap brim, and narrow ribbon band and bow about its crown—also appropriate for casual sports wear, or topping a riding outfit.

* * *

THE WOMAN with many week-end invitations, the traveler or the college girl would find this outfit a welcome addition.

* * *

SHOES WITH sensible heels, hose other than chiffons, and warm gloves with a casual smartness are essentials in the fall week end wardrobe. Soft suede jackets, with matching berets, have a place. New knitted fashions can be rejoiced in as much for their chic as for their cozy warmth.

"Now you're done with school, go get a job!"

That's about the way things shaped up for Jack Donahue as we find him leaving the Harvard Grammar school. He was in the graduating class but his name did not show on the school program. And so between dances, he goes to work in a cheap jewelry house in Hanover st. That didn't last long—Jack took pneumonia and nearly died. When fall came he tried three high schools and there he was a flop. And so now he he has a real man's job, picked by his father.

By WIN BROOKS

Copyright 1930, Boston Evening American

For four years, in black shirt and dungarees, Jack Donahue shuffled between the Navy Yard and his Charlestown home.

Down to the yard in the morning, home for lunch; back to the yard for the afternoon and home again at night. Sometimes he walked alone. Sometimes he walked with his father.

It was on those occasions when Dennis Donahue accompanied him, the two swinging along, broad-shouldered in their working clothes, tools in their hands, that it seemed Jack Donahue might, after all, be "the spit of his father."

Looking back now, with the knowledge of what fate held in store, one may be too prone to blame Dennis Donahue — to say that he cheated Jack out of four years of realization of his dream and swindled the American public of four years of masterly entertainment.

His attitude may easily be understood. The Donahues of his forebears, like himself, were a hard-working, God-fearing people who had danced for pleasure, not for pay.

Knowing nothing of the stage, he saw little of hard work about a stage career; he did sense something [illegible] in professional dancing by a hard-boiled Donahue of [illegible] nearly grown six feet.

Nor was his viewpoint completely changed, not even when [illegible] years before Dennis Donahue died, the name of the erstwhile machinist's helper shone in [illegible] two feet high on Broadway.

And [illegible] this to be considered [illegible] the four [illegible] at the Navy Yard, much of it at hard work, out of doors, Jack [illegible] and strengthened and undoubtedly built up the physique [illegible] the future exacting demands of the stage. It [illegible] not beyond possibility that but for these [illegible] his stage career might have been considerably shortened.

Time and again it has been written that Jack Donahue proved a better dancer than a machinist's helper and that is true. It has been phrased that "as a mechanic he proved a great dancer" and that in its implication that he was not a good mechanic is not true. He was.

He could take down a motor and put it together again long after the world knew his name.

[illegible] Cushing, who remained [illegible] of his Charlestown friends, says Jack was mechanically inclined. Even after [illegible] when he was living [illegible] Cushing recalls he [illegible] car and made [illegible]

"Speaking of Mechanics"

In it he drove over to Charlestown and took Cushing for a ride along the North Shore. He had removed the mudguards and they landed back in Charlestown plastered with mud.

At the height of his fame he bought a partnership in a Times square [illegible] and somebody asked him the then popular question:

"What do you know about machinery, Jack?"

He immediately began a dissertation on the complexities and qualities of various motors to prove what he did know.

"And speaking of mechanics," he added, "I had a one string fiddle once that was a corker."

He did have a one string fiddle. Cushing remembers that he spent hours poking some sort of music out of it.

So work at the Navy Yard was not something for which he was totally unfitted or something in which he failed to find any measure of happiness, as has sometimes been represented. His own joking about the Navy Yard job in later life is probably more

WORST TIEUP DOWNTOWN IN YEARS

Traffic Is Halted for an Hour on Tremont-Boylston Subway Lines

Thousands of persons were forced to walk to work today when one of the worst tieups in years occurred in the Tremont and Boylston st. subways.

The jam was caused by derailment of a Newton-Brighton-Watertown car while rounding the loop at Park st. in the midst of the morning rush-hour period.

Within a few minutes a line of stalled cars extended from Park to Boylston st. and it was more than an hour before these moved. Passengers left them and walked along the tracks to the station platform.

An emergency crew of the Elevated went to work on the derailed car shortly after the accident, which occurred at 8:30, but they were not able to get the car moved until long after the rush was over.

JOBS FOR 200 IN TUNNEL PLAN

More than 200 men will be placed at work within a short time on the Governor sq. tunnel, if plans for a further extension of the tunnel forwarded today by Mayor Curley and Col. Thomas F. Sullivan, transit commission chairman, are approved.

The new plan provides for continuing the tunnel 2000 feet beyond the outlet planned originally at an additional cost of $1,750,000. Complaints that the proposed outlet at the Boston & Albany bridge in Beacon st. would result in traffic congestion resulted in the new plans.

They were submitted to Henry I. Harriman, chairman of the board of trustees of the Boston Elevated, and both Mayor Curley and Col. Sullivan expressed the belief the plans would be approved within a [illegible] days.

Col. Sullivan said the new plans placed the outlet of the tunnel at a point on Beacon st. between Audubon circle and St. Mary's st.

Acceptance of the plan would mean the hiring of 200 men to work three shifts daily from the St. Mary's end in addition to the [illegible] men now working from the Governor sq. end.

Allen Urged to Speed Court Annex

Mayor Curley today requested Gov. Allen to urge haste by the committee now working on plans for the proposed new wing to be added to the Suffolk county court house. The mayor suggested the state should assume the expense of construction of those sections which will be occupied solely by state departments and saving $3,000,000 for the city.

New State Treasurer Plans No Changes

State Treasurer-elect Charles F. Hurley of Cambridge called on Treasurer John W. Haigis at the State House today. He said it was a courtesy call and added he had assured Haigis he planned no changes in the personnel.

Jack Donahue Was U.S. Navy Machinist

FOR FOUR YEARS Jack Donahue walked each morning from his home in Charlestown accompanied by his father, to join the black-shirt machine gang, at the Charlestown Navy yard. You here see his father, with pipe in mouth, and a number of the other machinists with whom the dancing star toiled. The story of Jack Donahue tells of the one-string-violin that he played and also how his machinist's ability enabled him to be the first boy in Charlestown to strip a touring car and rebuild it into a racer.

ARMY CALLED FOR WARS OF PEACE

300 Gold Star Mothers Are Present at Armistice Day Celebration

By BERT FORD

A boom for Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt of New York for President was subtly launched by Mayor Curley at Symphony Hall last night.

The Mayor did not use the term "president," but several thousand in the audience were quick to catch his meaning. They applauded long and vociferously when he said with significant emphasis:

"Who knows but that the three-quarters of a million given to him for the devout cause of calling him Governor may mean that the people may yet accord him the title which he merits."

GOLD STAR GUESTS

Mayor Curley was chairman and Governor Roosevelt was chief guest and orator at Armistice memorial exercises held under the auspices of the Veterans of Foreign Wars.

Nearly 300 Gold Star mothers occupied seats on the stage. In the afternoon Suffolk County Council, V. F. W., had entertained them at luncheon at Hotel Statler.

Gov. Roosevelt was given a flattering welcome. His address, "Wars of Peace," treated issues which involve every household and individual.

The program was broadcast over WLEX, sponsored by the Boston Evening American.

Speaking of the state's duty to the aged, he said:

"Only in our own generation have we recognized not only the thought that the state has an obligation to these old people, but also the thought that these old people have the right to demand of the state itself that it be made possible for them to live to the end of their days in their own homes by their own firesides."

The Governor then discussed other "wars" of peace stating:

"Then there has been the war carried on in our own day and generation in behalf of the physical safety and health of our working men and women and our children.

PRISON PROGRESS

There is, furthermore, what is miscalled the war against crime; it should be known by the better term of the war to prevent crime. At last the public conscience is being aroused to the fact that punishment alone does not cure crime.

"Another great war of peace-time is that which we are waging in behalf of mental and physical health.

"Within a month I have visited one of the great hospitals for the mentally ill in my State and have been told by its superintendent that of the hundreds of new cases which are admitted, within the past year, 45 per cent have been returned to their families wholly cured or so vastly benefited that they could be taken care of by their own families.

"Finally, I would say a word to you of another war which does not affect our bodies or our minds but affects very intimately the lives we lead.

"Certain elements that enter into the daily needs of a people have long been recognized as bearing a character which differs from that of the ordinary commodities of barter and trade.

"These are the group of services which we list under the broad heading of public utilities.

"In their essentials they are often monopolistic and the State, for many generations past has recognized the distinction between them and the other products of industry.

"Today in this field of war two armies are drawn up, the one seeking to free the utilities from all limitation of profit for personal gain, and on the other side, that more modern army which seeks the development and distribution of those utilities at lower cost for the good of the great mass of the people.

"We of this newer army may well extend the motto, "public office is a public trust," to apply to the thought that "public service is a public trust."

Mrs. Roosevelt, wife of the governor, occupied a seat on the stage with her son, James. State, city and federal officials and representatives of the army, navy and clergy were present.

Gov. Roosevelt spent much of the day with his sons, visiting Franklin D., Jr., and John at Groton and lunching at the home of James in Cambridge. He also addressed the 300 Gold Star Mothers at Hotel Statler.

MAN COLLAPSES SEEKING JOB

A man suffering from malnutrition collapsed today as more than 700 struggled to gain entrance to the Municipal Employment Bureau, 25 Church st., to appeal for work.

He was taken to City Hospital and after first aid treatment gave his name as Bonifacio Lagianzio, 47, of Third st., South Boston. Later he was discharged from the hospital to begin again his quest for a job.

There were jobs for 30 men and 20 women for the hundreds who stormed the employment offices.

Director John J. Shields, declaring that with the arrival of cold weather the situation had reached a crisis issued an appeal for more jobs.

A number of shoemakers applied for work for the first time today, and one was a man with eight children. No one in the family is working.

Those who got work, for the most part from persons responding to the suggestion of the Boston Evening American that odd jobs be found and given to the needy, were given jobs as handymen, carpenters, electricians, dishwashers, store clerks, garage floormen, general cleaners, paperhangers, truck drivers and helpers.

Shields spent several hours today urging store managers to hire men and women now for the Christmas rush and received several promises.

'Thousands' Won in Lottery Paid Off in Mere Change

The fond hopes of four East Weymouth men who a few days ago learned they had won large amounts in the Gaspe Fisherman's Sweepstakes at Quebec, October 28, received a rude jolt yesterday. Late mails brought them checks, it is true, but for much smaller amounts than Canadian reports had them as winning.

Ivan Palm of 249 Middle st., who had been notified in a telegram a few days ago that his horse had won first place, had understood from newspapers that he would receive $30,500. The mail brought him a check for a mere $600.

The other three, whose winnings were figured at $10,000, $5000 and $1000, each received checks for $19.37. They are Robert Whitemarsh of Fairmount ave., a member of the Weymouth fire department; Fred Johnston of 38 Cain ave., and John Fraher of Riley ave.

To End a Cough In a Hurry, Mix This at Home

To end a stubborn cough quickly, it is important to soothe and heal the inflamed membranes, get rid of the germs and also to aid the system inwardly to help throw off the trouble.

For these purposes, here is a home-made medicine, far better than anything you could buy at 3 times the cost. From any druggist, get 2½ ounces of Pinex. Pour this into a pint bottle, and add plain granulated sugar syrup or strained honey to fill up the pint. This takes but a moment, and makes a remedy so effective that you will never do without it once you have used it. Keeps perfectly, and children like it.

This simple remedy does three necessary things. First, it loosens the germ-laden phlegm. Second, it soothes away the inflammation. Third, it is absorbed into the blood, where it acts directly on the bronchial tubes. This explains why it brings such quick relief, even in the obstinate bronchial coughs which follow cold epidemics.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway Pine, containing the active agent of creosote, in a refined, palatable form, and known as one of the greatest healing agents for severe coughs, chest colds and bronchial troubles.

It's Time YOU tried one!

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets

In 1894 a druggist sold his first package of Stuart's. Today they are a drug-store staple. The first thing that comes to mind when the stomach needs a sweetener. No burning soda! Just a happy combination of Calcium Carbonate (2½ times more effective than soda), Magnesia and other valuable ingredients. In ten minutes—or less—acidity is overcome; all that sourness dispelled.

Many parents have come to realize these tablets are ideally suited to children's digestive disorders. The tremendous sale of the family size boxes is proof of that. Next time a young stomach is complaining, think of Stuart's.

PLEA MADE BY ALLEN, PHELAN

State Jobless Committee Acts After Conference With Labor Leaders

A plea for Washington to cut red tape on the widening of Cape Cod canal went out today from Governor Allen and James J. Phelan, chairman of the Massachusetts emergency committee on unemployment, after a three-hour conference with business leaders and labor chiefs on unemployment.

At the same time they called on the New England public to insist on New England Christmas trees for the holidays as a means of providing immediate work.

Telegrams sent Secretary of War Patrick F. Hurley, Secretary of Labor James J. Davis, U. S. Senator David I. Walsh and Frederick Gillette, Col. Arthur Woods of President Hoover's committee on unemployment, and all the Massachusetts congressmen asked for aid on the canal project.

U. S. WOULD SAVE

"On the proposed widening and deepening of the Cape Cod canal, we are informed that orders have been issued for a careful and efficient survey of the canal by the War Department for this purpose," the telegrams read.

"The survey, we understand, is preliminary to sending to Congress a recommendation for authority to undertake this work and for funds to carry it through.

"Is it not possible to cut all red tape and hurry the necessary appropriation to begin this work through Congress immediately upon the convening thereof?

"The canal to serve the fullest purpose must be deepened and widened.

"In view of the present day cost of materials, to start this work at once would result in great savings to the government.

"The all-important and outstanding reason to begin this work at once is the great assistance that it would give in this section in relieving our serious unemployment situation."

WOULD BAN IMPORTS

The committee said a demand for New England Christmas trees would discourage their importation from other countries and would supply a demand for labor in this section that would afford immediate relief to many who could cut the trees.

Among the labor men in attendance today were J. Arthur Moriarty, president of the Central Labor Union, James T. Moriarty of the Sheet Metal Workers Union, C. B. Campfield of the International Association of Machinists, H. P. Grages, secretary of the Central Labor Union, and R. W. Bowdoin, executive secretary of the committee.

The labor men urged that the committee ask Washington to allow no further permits for the importation of alien labor here.

They promised the "stagger" system would be employed among the unions as far as possible with additional shifts for necessary overtime work.

MRS. COOLIDGE HONOR GUEST

Admiral Louis M. Nulton and Mrs. Marcus Coolidge, wife of the senator-elect, were special guests of honor when they visited the recreational hut of the Women's Seamen's Friend Society at the Marine Hospital in Chelsea today. They displayed an active interest in the organization's drive to increase its women's membership from 800 to 1000.

Mrs. William M. Morgan, president of the society, met the guests, explained to them the varied activities of the society and introduced them to 125 of the seamen who receive benefit from the organization's charity.

The hut provides necessary clothing to men discharged from the hospital and supplies knitted articles, such as pneumonia jackets, sweaters, mufflers and wristers, to the sailors and coast guards up and down the New England coast. It also maintains a library and provides music for church services every Sunday.

STAR WINS IN BOSTON PREMIERE

By HARRIS MORGAN

THE MOST satisfactory natural Shylock seen in a generation flowered forth on the boards at the Tremont last night. It is a role that many have attempted, even the women. For example, Charlotte Crampton, Mrs. Macready, Miss Henry Lewis and quite recently Lucille La Verne. ## HAROLD LLOYD'S 'FEET FIRST' OFFERS COMEDY APLENTY

By HARLEIGH SCHULTZ

LEAVE HOPE OF SERIOUS things behind, all ye who enter the Uptown and the Washington Street Olympia, during the run of "Feet First." For just as sure as you do, and keep your [illegible] "glued" on the screen, just so surely will Harold Lloyd project himself upon your short ribs and other [illegible] parts of your anatomy, and make you laugh. And laugh, and laugh, and laugh. Thanks to Mr. Lloyd we have just laughed long and loud at his antics.

GOOD IT IS TO have this [illegible]

Harold Lloyd

[illegible] at a REEL [illegible]

MR. LLOYD HAS the part of [illegible] in a chain store in Hawaii. He falls in with Barbara Kent, and of course his heart is lost at first sight. Thereafter with more or less logical plot, Mr. Lloyd chases on and off the screen in manner highly hilarious. His gags are numerous and good; there seems to be nothing he will not do for fun. Here he is apparently hanging by a hair, or nothing at all, from a skyscraper wall! Few quiet moments are there for the audience, the Lloyd stunts run on and on like a babbling brook. Most of his stuff is good, little is very bad. He is to be felicitated on keeping the amount of dialogue down to a minimum and on making the most of that minimum sparkle brightly.

Adapting "Mendel"

Paul Gangelin has been assigned to write the screen adaptation of "Mendel, Inc.," starring Smith and Dale.

MARION DAVIES TO STAR IN 'IT'S A WISE CHILD'

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS
Motion Picture Editor Universal Service

Copyright, 1930, By Universal Service

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 12.—Signed, sealed and delivered is the contract between Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer and David Belasco for the screen rights to "It's a Wise Child." Takes a long time to bind these bargains. I know because I have been waiting for Irving Thalberg to tell me that the popular M.-G.-M. lawyer, Robert Rubin, had obtained the permission of Mr. Belasco to put this modern, popular comedy drama in the talkies.

Now I will tell you why I have been waiting at his front door for the story. Marion Davies will be starred in "It's a Wise Child." The play has been purchased by M-G-M with Marion in mind. I saw a few rushes of "The Bachelor Father" and I spent a day watching Marion rehearse. Now I know why Mr. Belasco was delighted that Marion was to play the lead in his comedy. Both "The Bachelor Father" and "It's a Wise Child" have been popular hits not only in New York but all over the country. They might have been written for Marion. I say this after watching her rehearse and having seen some of the rushes of "The Bachelor Father."

Louella O. Parsons

Robert Leonard, her director, prophesies that "The Bachelor Father" will be Marion's greatest hit. Maybe I should be a little bit superstitious and not quote him but I saw the rushes and I don't think he exaggerated.

THE SWEDES and the French are going to fight for honors in "Poor John." El Brendel who is only Swedish by choice and Fifi Dorsay who is French because she was born that way will be the chief players in "Poor John" at Fox. Fifi will not make "Charley Chan Carries On" as originally advertised. She will instead report for work to John Blystone, the director, and do her stuff opposite El Brendel. What a mixture of accents! There is a report around town that Fifi had a heavy romance in New York. Some years ago she was engaged to her vaudeville partner, Freddy Berrens, and later the engagement was broken by mutual consent. While she was in New York the gossip is that they were seeing much of each other and were looking toward the matrimonial goal.

Film Who's Who

Brooks Benedict, who plays the role of the lover in "The Office Wife," at the Metropolitan tomorrow, is the son of the business manager of the Metropolitan Opera Company, the [illegible] Alice [illegible] opera singer. He studied both in America and Europe and was about to make his debut with the Covent Garden Grand Opera in London when war was declared. He joined the French flying forces and later became affiliated with the American air forces. He came out of the conflict with the rank of major.

Benedict was in stage productions with Maude Adams and Billie Burke. He entered pictures to play the same role in the picture "Six Cylinder Love" which he [illegible] on the stage. He has been [illegible]

Caroline Purcelle on Waldron's Bill

Caroline Purcelle and her "Top Speed" burlesque feature the triple program at Waldron's Casino this week, making as merry an assortment of girls, comedy and dancing as has been seen at this house this season. Beside Miss Purcelle there are Marie Arnold, Virginia Muzio, Jane Hazleton, Gertrude Paul and Louise Lewis; and for comedians, Joe Hill, Harry Stratton, Sid Rogers, Al Allen and George Brennan. The vaudeville includes Arnold and Leamy, whirlwind dancers; Crosby, Bird and Bird, acrobats, and Harry Morton, juggler. Two feature talking pictures complete the bill.

KEITH-BOSTON NEW NAME OF THEATER

The Keith-Albee Theater has been renamed the RKO Keith-Boston. This was the announcement today of Managing Director Charles Winston, head of the RKO interests in New England. A massive new electric sign and marquee will blazon the change to the Hub Rialto. The new name will be greeted with joy by thousands of theater goers, among many of whom the old habit has prevailed of referring to the house as "The Boston" because that was once its cognomen. Thus the word Boston replaces the word Albee. The house will continue to be what it has always been, the home of RKO vaudeville, booked in from the Palace Theater in New York; and of motion pictures.

Charles Winston

With the renaming of the theater comes also the announcement that starting Saturday, November 15, there will be four complete shows at the Keith-Boston Theater daily instead of three, and also a new price schedule is announced as follows: Twenty-five cents from 9 30 to 1 p. m., 35 cents from 1 to 6 p. m., 50 cents from 6 until closing, excepting Saturdays, Sundays and holidays.

"Man to Man"

"Man to Man" has been definitely decided upon as the title for the Warner special which was temporarily titled "Barber John's Boy." Grant Mitchell, Phillips Holmes and Lucille Powers head the cast.

HERO MASCOT FEATURE OF NEWSREEL

With the same paw he [illegible] raised to shake hands with Gen. Pershing and other [illegible], Rags, wartime mascot and pet dog of the First Division, is shown autographing [illegible] of his biography in this week's issue of Hearst Metrotone News at Loew's State. The book, entitled "Rags, the Story of a Dog That Went to War," will be placed beside similar books of Earl Kitchener and other prominent officers in the British [illegible] in the Imperial War Museum in England.

Numerous other interesting films are shown in the newsreel, including a real anvil chorus in Germany, a maharajah and his following paying homage to the Hindu gods, the Chicago crime commission in session, headed by F. J. Loesch.

At Loew's Orpheum this week the chief item of interest shown in the Hearst Metrotone newsreel is the wedding procession of King Boris of Bulgaria and Giovanna, his Italian princess bride. In the group of royal attendants are ex-King Ferdinand and the King and Queen of Italy, parents of the couple, with the ex-Queen of Greece and other princes.

H. R. H. the Prince of Wales speaks at the opening of a $1,000,000 bridge across the River Yare at Yarmouth.

3D LESSON IN COACH MAKING FASCINATES

Here is the third in the series of step-by-step [illegible] for model coach builders prepared for members of the Boston American Chapter of the Fisher Body Craftsman's Guild. It completes the body of the miniature model Napoleonic coach except for painting, upholstery and ornaments which will furnish fascinating employment later on.

Interest in the Guild program seems to be infectious. Scores of boys have joined the Boston American Chapter during the past week. Their names have gone to the Guild Headquarters in Detroit, from which their packages of instruction will be mailed immediately.

Each package contains handsome color prints on the coach, detailed plans and specifications for its construction, the beautiful bronze Guild button, membership card signed by Dan Beard, and a booklet with all the rules of the competition. With this material in hand, new members are all set to go.

SCORES OF INQUIRIES

Once started, they discover double incentive to keep on, devoting every available moment to work on their coach models. There are not only the four university scholarships and 980 other awards but the absorbing interest of watching the model take shape.

And this second incentive will prove especially strong from now on for the coach has reached a point where it is recognizable and where each additional detail increases its resemblance to the master model.

Every day brings scores of inquiries about Guild membership. There is still ample time to join and start even with the rest of the field. Just see your nearest General Motors car dealer, fill out the enrollment blank, and the full set of free instructions will be sent to you at once. There are no dues or fees of any sort in connection with the Guild.

LESSON NO 3

In our last lesson we left the work of making the miniature model Napoleonic coach at the point where we had just cut out the doors. Let us go on from there.

[illegible] Trim off 1-16 [illegible] on each side of the door and glue on a piece of [illegible] pine or other soft wood lengthwise on those edges. Be very careful in working with the doors so as not to split them. The pine strips help strengthen the door, also cover the end grain and add a finished appearance.

8. Fit doors to openings, being careful [illegible] both edges [illegible] window [illegible] side of door should be given a slight bevel for clearance in opening and closing.

9. If the door windows are to be movable you will need to cut out a recess [illegible] window on the inside [illegible] receive the glass and frame when lowered. Window frames can be made of thin wood or cardboard glued in place [illegible] window.

Illustration No. 4 of these lessons shows the method of constructing the door with [illegible] window pane [illegible] door windows [illegible] have the window [illegible] height [illegible] data [illegible] together with [illegible] and [illegible] way of making the door [illegible].

THE WINDOWS

10—The other windows of the coach are made in the same way as the door windows except that they remain fast. In holding these windows in place [illegible] thin piece of molding around the inside of window opening. Set the window in place against this molding and hold in place with molding [illegible] the molding [illegible] are [illegible].

11. The seats and back cushions should be made [illegible] and [illegible]. Remember that these [illegible] upholstery so allowance must be made [illegible] the thickness [illegible] width. The shape and [illegible] design is obtained [illegible] Basswood [illegible] or sponge rubber [illegible] and back material [illegible] wood [illegible] should be [illegible] may be [illegible].

The design should be [illegible] method of making the cushion and back forms out of wood.

Small [illegible] round headed gimp tacks may be used instead [illegible] for knot or button effect. If these are used it will not be necessary to drill the holes indicated.

The body of your coach should now be finished except for painting, upholstering and ornaments.

(With the coach body complete, members of the Boston Evening American Chapter of the Fisher Body Craftsman's Guild will turn their attention to the running gear of the coach next week. The numerous operations required to construct the coach wheels will be found in detail.)

Next Step on Coach

NASH PRICE IS DELIVERED

Kenosha, Wis., Nov. 12—In response to widespread requests from dealers, The Nash Motors Co. is advertising delivered instead of factory list prices. This move follows a recent announcement of new models at the lowest prices at which Nash cars of comparable size, power and [illegible] have ever been built. Commenting upon the radical departure from accepted practice, C. [illegible], general sales manager, says:

"It is of course extremely gratifying to us that Nash dealers are so enthusiastic about the value which Nash has been able to offer in these new cars. Our dealers report that our cars in many instances, with freight, tax, bumpers, spare tire, and other equipment added, are still below the f. o. b. prices of other cars of comparable size and power.

"We feel that in advertising delivered prices we have taken the lead in a direction in which the entire industry should proceed. Healthier, clean-cut, straight-forward competition, without camouflage, is one of the beneficial results of advertising delivered price—the price which the motor car buyer must pay for his car irrespective of what the f. o. b. price may be.

LOW PRICES ON NEW REO LINES

The low prices of the new lines of Reo motor cars headed by the Reo-Royale Eight were one of the surprises attending the announcement of these distinctive automobiles, says J. M. Linscott, local Reo dealer.

"The public generally has expressed wonder that as the new Royale was so nearly a custom job it did not have a custom price-tag on it," he added. "Likewise, they were pleasantly astonished that the new Flying Cloud Six, model '25,' is actually scaled $100 lower than its counterpart of last year, despite the many improvements instantly noticeable in it."

In the Royale Reo has incorporated all the elegance and luxuries of the finest custom-made cars here and abroad, while holding its price below the $2500 mark. Further, Reo in the Flying Cloud model 30, has produced an exceptional eight-cylinder car under the $2000 mark.

"All this points to a great accomplishment by Reo," said Mr. Linscott. "Not alone has the company produced stronger and faster cars below its former prices, but it has furnished that extra touch of beauty and individuality which will long hold the spotlight of world attention to its 1931 line."

Graham's Heat Control Is an Aid to Winter Operation

After an exhaustive series of tests in the "cold room," Graham has developed an intake manifold and fuel system that proves a boon to cold weather operation, yet differs widely from general practice, says R. A. Green of the Graham-Paige Co. of New England.

"The cross-section of the gas passage through the manifold has been made rectangular, with a wide, flat bottom surface, and the ports into the cylinder block likewise made rectangular," he says. "Changes of direction of the gas flow in the manifold are made at acute angles instead of around gently curved bends, so that the gas stream is sharply reversed just before entering the ports.

"The exhaust manifold discharges all exhaust gases at a central outlet instead of at the forward end, thus receiving the hot gases from all cylinders. During cold weather the owner can easily divert all this hot gas through a heater compartment surrounding the carburetor riser by means of a control located on the dash.

"The automatic expansion carburetor used has only one variable adjustment that gives proper mixture under all conditions of operation.

"Tests in the Graham cold room show that from a cold start the new heat control raises the temperature of the gas mixture to 80 degrees in half the time required by conventional devices."

MEETINGS FOR DEALERS ARE SET AHEAD

Detroit, Nov. 12—A significant sign of the aggressive policies to be adopted by the automobile industry toward making 1931 rank with past years in volume is seen here in the announcement that Chevrolet's annual dealer meetings are to get under way two months in advance of the customary date.

Four groups of sales officials from the home office, each group accompanied by a full carload of theatrical equipment, stage hands, electricians, etc., are scheduled to hold fifty meetings at as many central points during the next five weeks which will be attended by upwards of 20,000 Chevrolet dealers and associated bankers located in every section of the country.

In previous years these meetings, which are held to acquaint the dealer organization with company plans for the new year, got under way in January.

H. J. Klingler, vice-president and general sales manager of Chevrolet, remained noncommittal on the subject of a new car, other than to state that a part of the star chamber sessions with his dealers would be on this subject. He explained the holding of the meetings earlier this year by stating that normally November and December are dull months in the industry, and dealers are better able to leave their places of business during these months than in January or February.

The first meeting is scheduled at Cleveland on Nov. 3, and the last ones at Wichita and Davenport on Dec 5. Mr. Klingler, under whose general direction the meets are being held, plans to attend meetings at various points, while the next four ranking sales officials will have charge of the four groups.

D. E. Ralston, assistant general sales manager, directs the western meetings, which start at Chicago on Nov. 4, and wind up at Wichita, intermediate extreme points being at Minneapolis, Seattle, Los Angeles and El Paso.

Group two, in charge of M. D. Douglas, general parts and service manager, opens at St. Louis on Nov. 3, and holds thirteen meetings, with extreme points at New Orleans, San Antonio, Denver and Kansas City, winding up at Davenport.

R. K. White, advertising manager, heads the third group, which starts at Fort Wayne on Nov. 4 and holds twelve meetings in that territory, with extreme points at Louisville, Birmingham, Jacksonville and Cincinnati, ending at Charlotte, N. C., on Dec. 3.

Crew four, with W. E. Holler, assistant general sales manager, in charge, swings through the east, opening at Cleveland, continuing through Pittsburgh to Washington, north through New York city to Boston and Portland and west to Buffalo, where the trip ends on Nov. 25.

Meetings in each town last for two days.

Stork Parts Duncan Sisters for a Time

New York, Nov. 12 (AP)—An engagement with the stork necessitates temporary dissolution of the Duncan sisters' stage and movie team.

Cannon's Illness Postpones Hearing

Birmingham, Ala., Nov. 12—Bishop W. N. Ainsworth, chairman of the College of Bishops, Methodist Episcopal Church South, announced here that a meeting of the committee appointed to investigate charges against Bishop James M. Cannon Jr., called for today has been postponed because of Bishop Cannon's illness.

Bank Robber Slain, Another Captured

Marland, Okla., Nov. 13 (AP)—Two young bank robbers ran into a [illegible] of officers' bullets as they left the Marland State Bank today with $600. One, Jimmie Jackson, 20-year-old Indian of Pawhuska, was killed and the other, Carter Camp, [illegible] of Pawhuska, was wounded [illegible] Six officers [illegible] [illegible].

Fossilized Skeleton Found in California

Coalinga, Cal., Nov. 13 (AP)—A fossilized skeleton described by scientists as that of a proto-mastodon of the miocene age was on display at the high school here today as the fruits of an exploration expedition by the students. The skeleton was found near Coalinga. The tusks measured seven inches in diameter at the base and the skull 24 inches wide between the eyes.

Lloyd George Plan Meets With Scorn

London, Nov. 12 (INS)—Lloyd George's plans for unemployment relief, which called for the borrowing of money by the government, were again in the background today after Philip Snowden, chancellor of the exchequer, sarcastically stated in the House of Commons that "it is not the policy of this government to make a loan and then devise means of spending it."

Marathon Car Visits Stone Mountain

AMONG THE INTERESTING PLACES visited by the Dodge Eight Mileage Marathon car, which began a run July 1 that is expected to pile up hitherto unheard of mileage for an automobile, is Stone Mountain, near Atlanta, Ga. Stone Mountain is the world's largest monolith, and on its side is being carved the mammoth Confederate Memorial. Visible on the right is the head of Lee, as done by Augustus Lukeman. On the left, the driver of the car and Ray Priest, official observer of the contest board, A. A. A., are seen talking to some state officials. The Marathon car traveled over 40,000 miles in three months.

FRANKLIN PRICE CUT $500

The Franklin Motor Car Co. [illegible] announced a price reduction of $500 on all new series 145 and 147 Franklin cars. This reduction is declared effective for the short time necessary to reduce new car [illegible] and applies only to cars in the possession of the Boston [illegible] and suburban dealers, [illegible] general manager of the company, said.

This revision of price brings the Transcontinental sedan down to $1995 fully equipped.

"The air-cooled airplane engine which powers these cars has actually flown an airplane and recently out-performed all other engines installed in seven-ton army trucks at Fort Meade, Md. In a race in which 10 army tanks participated the tank powered with a Franklin air-cooled engine [illegible] the [illegible] nine tanks."

Curiosities of Miniature Golf!

Ingenious Hazards Which Increase Difficulties on Tom Thumb Courses

AT one miniature golf course in London the players must play the ball through a monkey cage. One course at Long Beach uses discarded musical instruments built into unique hazards. Another course has a live cub bear at one hazard who tries to grab the ball, causing the player to lose the hole. As the fad of "pee-wee" golf spreads, the hazards become more freakish. Read this interesting article on miniature golf in the American Weekly section of the next Boston Sunday Advertiser.

By JACK LAIT

CHAPTER 17

THE INVINCIBLE yen-yen for opium that Silk Freeman with his titan will power had been able to control (for he smoked but once a day and always at the same hour), fell on him when he entered his devastated apartment a few minutes after Tommy Gillespie and Cyclone Tim McClosky had torched through his steel door, knocked out and crippled the two guards, tied up the old ex-convict, Pete, and rescued Alice Schuyder.

The Big Boy, who only recently had given away to his passions, both love and anger, found himself now so completely unnerved and maddened by this latest diablerie, that he sought detachment in the pipe. The old servitor had been his official cooky for years, had prepared his pipe, rolled his pill and touched it with the magic flame. But Silk kicked the prostrate form of his servant, who still lay gibbering on the floor, and went to his couch to satisfy his craving and still his turbulent senses.

A Wicked Smile

He quickly opened the toy of opium, a choice Persian brand high in morphine content, and dug out with the needle a bit of the black, gummy substance. He lit the small lamp and then he played with the opium on the bowl of his pipe, rolling it back and forth into a little pellet.

Then he jabbed it into the tiny hole in the center of the bowl, and without lying down on his side, as was his habit, he sat on the coach and turned the pipe over the small blue flame. The opium sputtered and crackled, and Silk sucked the black smoke into his lungs in one long, ecstatic inhalation.

Then another pill, and still another cooked on his pipe and he felt the soft embrace of the drug around his jangling brain. The two bodyguards who had followed him into the apartment after he had received the frantic telephone call from an official source stood across the room, shifting from one foot to the other in their embarrassment, for they had never before seen Silk display a weakness.

But the Big Boy heeded nobody and a cruel, wicked smile played on his thin lips as he smoked.

The telephone at his side rang. He appeared not to hear it, and then, after the bell had tinkled six times, he took up the receiver, holding his smoking pipe in one hand.

Paces the Floor

He turned again to his pipe. He now inhaled his tenth draw and he laid the stem aside. His face was a pasty mask of hatred. The pupils of his eyes were pin points. He sat for a moment and then arose and began pacing the floor.

"Get these muggs out of here!" he said curtly to his two bodyguards, waving toward the wounded men. The bodyguards, coughing from the sweetish poppy fumes, dragged the bodies, one by one, into the room where Alice Schuyder had been held prisoner.

"Get a doctor for 'em—you know who I mean—and straighten up this joint."

He continued to pace the floor, kicking now and then angrily at some battered bit of furniture. The opium had whetted a nasty and dangerous edge on his mood.

Biff Glasson, king of the Bridge Twisters mob, was there in five minutes. He took one look at the chaotic, blood-spattered room, another at the chalk-white, leering face of Silk, and sniffed the opium fumes, but made no comment. When he entered, Silk turned on him quickly.

"Now I won't stomach any more kid glove stuff!" he stormed. "I want you to clean out that McClosky mob and clean 'em out like crabs."

"Listen, B. B.," raucously growled Biff. "I've got that million bucks o' heroin spotted. It's salted away in a cockroach palace on Cherry st., and I got a place rented right across the way. I'm ripe to shoot."

"Grab Off the Dope"

"You — you've found that dope?" cried Silk, planting himself squarely in front of the gang leader. Then a wicked smile played on his curling lips. "That's great. Grab it off quick. But get me that McClosky mob at the same time. Here's five grand working' capital. Clean up!"

He shoved the money into Biff's hand and pushed him toward the door. Then went slowly back to his pipe.

Cherry St., on Manhattan's lower East Side, was once the heart of the fashionable district. George Washington lived there, at the corner of Franklin, after he was inaugurated President of the United States.

John Hancock's home was at No. 6. Then, in later years, when the wave of immigration forced the aristocrats northward, their mansions were displaced by long rows of ramshackle tenement houses where lived a vice-ridden and poverty-sodden polyglot horde.

Cherry Hill, the highest point on the street, was the playground of some of New York's toughest gangs. There were the Daybreak Boys, the Buckoos, Hookers, Swamp Angels, Slaughter Housers, Short Tails, Patsy Conroys and the Border Gang. Some of the deathless prizefighters [illegible] from the district, [illegible] one continual round of street brawls, gang battles and all the ancient professions.

Today it is far more peaceful for the gangsters and the crooks have moved uptown to the environs of Broadway. A section of a score of blocks between Broadway and 5th ave. and 46th to 55th st. houses more speakeasies, dope dens, fake joints, badger apartments, "call" dives, than probably any other equal acreage in this country.

Rival Gangs

The only semblance of the old-time lawlessness of the Lower East Side was to be found in the two rival gangs—the River Rats and the Bridge Twisters. The two leaders, Cyclone Tom McClosky and Biff Glasson, had been enemies as far back as they could remember, and even as youngsters their two mobs had clashed at every turn.

And now Biff Glasson gloried in the revenge he would have on Cyclone Tim and his gang. He had already spotted the hijacked dope. Across the street he had planted two men in a front room and day after day they had watched the changing of the McClosky guards—two would come and two would go—and Biff Glasson knew that somewhere in the dismal six-story tenement building was concealed the $1,000,000 worth of heroin.

So, at noon the next day—the day following his talk with Silk Freeman—he gathered together his entire gang in his speakeasy hangout on South St. They met in a back room of the place—a tough and murderous battalion.

"I don't want no shootin'—this time." Biff's voice was low and guttural. "De shootin'll come soon enough—for we're goin' to clean out dat whole River Rat mob. But first we've got to get dat dope. It's somewhere in dat buildin' and we only got a few ginks to deal wid."

He paused and looked around into the grimy, leering faces.

"One t'ing more," he growled. "I want McClosky fer me own meat. Get me? I don't want nobody to croak dat hoodlum but Biff Glasson. But on dis foist job, knives and blackjacks, unless——"

He never finished the sentence and the grunts about him told him he did not need to. The men filed out, their weapons bulging beneath their dirty clothes. A dozen of them piled into a covered truck. The rest got into six cars and the caravan started toward Cherry st., with Biff Glasson in the first car.

He knew that the McClosky guards were changed at noon and it was now 12.30 o'clock. The six cars drew up at either end of the block—three on the north end and three on the south. The truck was driven directly in front of the house. At the corner one of Biff's lookouts was waiting for him.

"De two guys went in, but de udder two is still in dere," he informed the leader.

Curt Orders

He gave a signal, and followed by a dozen of his mob walked briskly down the street to the tenement house. Those in the truck jumped out and Biff gave his instructions in short, curt words.

"Six o' youse guys plant yerselves on every floor, so's we can find what flat dem bozos came out of. You, Hungry, take the top floor, wid you, and you, and you, and you, and you."

He put a finger on one after the other. The men swarmed into the dirty hallway and shuffled up the stairs. Hungry Joe and his five had hardly gotten to the third landing before Biff heard the sounds of a tussle.

Biff Glasson took the steps three at a time. Hungry Joe and his men had come up the stairs just as the two McClosky mobsters were leaving the apartment. The two guards had jumped back through the door, but not before Hungry Joe and three others got inside. Some one had bolted the door then and the eight men inside began fighting it out.

With a mighty running kick Biff Glasson rammed his weight against the door. It burst open and he stumbled over the body of Hungry Joe lying on the small kitchen floor. A dozen of his men followed him. In the next room of the flat he found two men on the floor, squirming and pummeling each other. Biff cracked one on the head with a black-jack and the man fell back with a moan. He made the rear room just in time to see one of the River Rats, blood streaming from a gash in his head, crawl out on the fire escape. Biff ran to the window. The man pulled himself up the iron ladder to the roof and when Biff started to follow a brick grazed his head and momentarily stunned him.

Cyclone Tim McClosky was just tossing off a barbed drink when Goo Goo Kurtz, who had escaped from Biff Glasson, staggered into the saloon, blood spurting from a wound in his head.

"Dey—dey copped de dope," he murmured weakly, and fell to the floor. "Dey're dere now. Glasson's wit' 'em—" and he could say no more.

Bright Dresses and Hats With Fur Coats

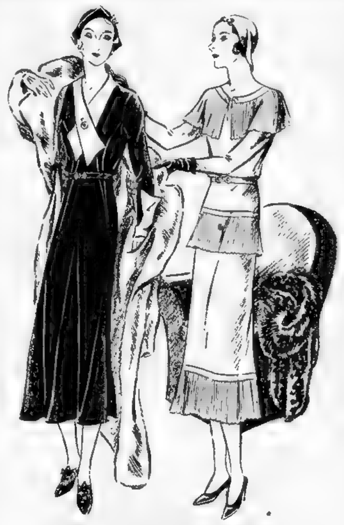
Directed by AMOS PARRISH



TYPICAL BRIGHT COLORED COSTUMES
Right: A silk dress with fashionable peplum and bertha.

NEW YORK, Nov. 12—Fur coat-wearing time. And up and down Fashion's avenues they go promenading. Black fur coats and brown fur coats and beige fur coats. Long ones and short ones. All smart—all in fashion.

With Black Coats

Take black, for instance. Try it with a bright dark red in dress and hat—or dress or hat, if you don't want quite as much red. Or wear quite a brilliant green. Or [illegible] blue. Or rust.

Or, say, a brown fur coat—one of those lovely caraculs, nutria, beavers or dark brown lapins. Bright dark greens. Henna. Rich reds. Can't you see how fetching they look—how they cheer up a wintry scene?

Everywhere you go you see them. At football games. At tea parties. Shopping. Lunching. There are bright colored dresses and hats for all sorts of events—formal, semi-formal, informal.

Smaller Hats

Most of the hats are small—quite a bit smaller than the hats you've seen worn all fall. Why? Because with coat collars that snuggle up close to the neck for protection, big hats don't fit. Their brims get in the way.

One of the small bright hats you're going to see more and more of is the tricorne—the three cornered hat that looks something like the hat worn during the Revolutionary days. An especially good hat for the fur coat because its brim turns up in the back. There's nothing to get in the way of the coat collar. One is sketched on the left hand figure.

The beret turban fits inside the coat collar nicely too. This may have a draped-down back, like the hat on the right hand figure, but it fits closely so the collar can be pulled up around it.

Crisp Tailored Dresses

Some of the tailored dresses that are appearing in bright colored wools or silks are the best looking you've ever seen. They're crisp looking, full of fashion zip—from the tops of their neatly fitted shoulders to the bottom of their comfortably full skirts!

Look at the one in the left hand sketch for example. Notice particularly the collar and the gauntlet cuffs. They're different, all right. New. Interesting.

And for a dressier event—a tea perhaps—the dress at the right, developed in a gay, bright color, is just about perfect. It has the peplum effect that's so fashionable, the bertha that gives the shoulders the wider look that fashion likes, and the low-placed fulness to the skirt which most every fashion-right dress has.

Xmas Card for an Old Friend

By MRS. BEECKMAN.

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

I would like very much to send a Christmas card to an old man friend of mine, but I don't know how I should sign my name to it, as he does not know that I am married and has never met the man I married.

J. C. W.

On the front of the card sign your name as you were known to him—"With best wishes and Christmas greetings, Grace"—and then, on the back of the card, write a bit of a note telling him your name now.

Expressions to Be Avoided

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

In your column today you advised Dorothy that it is poor taste to use the expression "steady company," also that it is poor taste to use "likewise" to an acknowledgement of an introduction. I have always used those expressions, thinking they were correct, and because "likewise" was short. Is there any other word that could be used?

F. H.

I am glad that you have turned your eyes and thoughts on the question of the good usage and good form of these expressions. Please don't use them, for if you do, you will be stamped at once, by people who are discriminating as not knowing what's what in the world of good usage. "Steady company" is a ridiculous expression, never to be used. A man whom you know is either an acquaintance, a friend, or a fiance. "Steady company" is a meaningless expression, to be avoided as you would avoid smallpox.

"Likewise," too, as the form of acknowledgement of an introduction, is equally bad repute. When you acknowledge an introduction, you say, "How do you do?"—and, if you say this, you will always be in good form. When you leave, you may, if you wish, say, "I am very glad to have met you," or something similar—if you are glad.

Addressing the Birth Announcement

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

We are expecting our first baby soon and as we expect to have a new address about that time, would it be correct to put our return address on the envelope of the announcement?

A READER.

Yes.

Mrs. Beeckman will be glad to answer questions on etiquette submitted by readers.

Some Dainty Recipes for Plain Cooking

By MARTHA LEE

From Martha Lee's Wednesday Morning Broadcast over Station WLEX.

OUR CROP of brides is really quite a comfort to me. They take my little lessons to heart so nicely, and come back for more! In fact, I've had so many requests for "just plain cooking" that I've made up a collection from my files and have almost two dozen of them all ready to mail out if any of you want them. There's nothing fancy about these recipes—just plain [illegible] fash[illegible] [illegible] [illegible] over [illegible] with the men folks [illegible] [illegible] a few [illegible] once prepared for you [illegible] hope you'll write for them.

Martha Lee

First, we have

CREAMY OMELET

- 4 eggs
- 4 tbsp. milk or water
- ½ tsp. salt
- ⅛ tsp. pepper
- 1 tsp. butter

Beat eggs slightly [illegible] blend the yolks and white. Add milk and seasoning. Put butter in hot spider; when melted turn in the mixture. As it cooks, draw the edges toward the center with a knife until the whole is set. If desired brown underneath, place on hotter part of the stove. Fold and turn on hot platter.

CORN OMELET

- ½ cup canned corn or corn from cob
- 1 egg separated
- ¼ tsp. salt
- 3 tbsp. cream
- 2 tbsp. fat

Chop corn very fine, add yolk well beaten, the salt and a little pepper, the cream and fold in the stiffly beaten white of egg. Heat spider, add butter or any other fat, pour in the mixture, and cook until set and well browned underneath. Fold and turn on heated dish.

CREAM OF POTATO SOUP

- 3 potatoes
- 1 qt. milk
- 2 slices onion
- ¼ tsp. celery salt
- 3 tbsp. butter
- 2 tbsp. flour
- 1½ tsp. salt
- ¼ tsp. pepper
- Few grains cayenne
- 1 tbsp. chopped parsley

Cook the potatoes till very soft. Scald the milk and onion in a double boiler. Drain the potatoes and add the milk having removed the onion. Rub through a strainer and put back into double boiler over the fire. Melt the butter or dripping, add the flour, stirring all the time. Pour some of the hot milk mixture over the thickening, then return to the boiler and cook five minutes. Add 1 tsp. finely chopped parsley and serve very hot. If the soup is too thick, add water or milk. One-half cup of cream, whipped stiff, may be added to soup before serving.

CREAM OF CORN SOUP

- 1 can corn
- 1 pt. water
- 1 qt. hot milk
- 1 tsp. salt
- 2 tbsp. butter
- 1 slice onion
- 2 tbsp. flour
- ⅛ tsp. white pepper

Heat the milk and [illegible] then remove onion. Chop the corn or rub through a sieve and cook it with the water 20 minutes. Melt the butter, add the flour, and when bubbling add first 2-3 cup, then the rest of the milk gradually, cook until slightly thickened. Add this mixture to the corn and season with salt and pepper. Serve hot, with crackers.

PORK CHOPS WITH APPLES

Take pork chops 1½ inches thick, sprinkle with salt and pepper. Cover each chop with half of an unpeeled apple, cut crosswise and cored, placing cut side on chop. Sprinkle apple with sugar, place in pan in medium oven and bake 30 to 40 minutes, basting often, until well browned and done. Serve hot with gravy slightly thickened with cornstarch or a little sour cream. Or fry pork chops sprinkled with salt and pepper in hot frying pan brown on both sides, arrange on hot platter and serve with slices of apples cut one half inch thick and fried in the fat remaining in the pan.

CASSEROLE OF RICE AND MEAT

Steam one cup of rice, 3 cups boiling water, 1 tsp. salt, 2 cups cold cooked meat, [illegible] tsp. salt, ⅛ tsp. [illegible] pepper, 1 tsp. chopped onion, 2 tbsp. cracker crumbs, 1 egg, 1 cup hot water or stock, 1 tsp. poultry seasoning. Steam the rice 20 minutes. Chop the meat very fine, add all seasonings, then the beaten egg, cracker crumbs and stock, or hot water enough to moisten. Line the bottom and sides of a greased mould or small bread tin one-inch thick with cooked rice, pack in the meat, cover closely with rice, then cover with greased paper and steam 45 minutes. Loosen around the edge of mould, turn out on hot platter and pour tomato sauce around it. Garnish with parsley.

Faithfully yours,

Martha Lee

"Gobbling" Food Is Hard Habit to Break

By R. S. COPELAND, M. D.

LAST SUMMER we entertained at our home two sisters, old friends of ours. There were other guests, so the table was delightfully crowded.

Dr. Copeland

You know what a lot of chaffing and laughing takes place when congenial friends meet at dinner. Every thing is made the subject of jest and merriment.

One of the sisters I mentioned was positively the most deliberate eater I ever met. She was always the last of the group to finish a course and, since some of the young people were eager always to get away for other pleasures, you can imagine the teasing this good lady received.

All this did not ruffle our friend one particle. "I honor my food," she said. Invariably, when urged to hurry, the reply was. "No; I honor my food."

Do you know that statement impressed me greatly.

Think about it yourself. In many respects eating is the most important thing a human being does. Yet how carelessly, how neglectfully we attend to the most pressing duty in our daily lives!

If we would honor the food and honor the meal we would be better off by a great deal. We have been taught to ask God's blessing on the food. After giving thanks for it, really we are inconsistent if we slight or bolt the meal. We should dignify the occasion, give respect to what we eat—in short, honor our food.

It isn't fair to the good housewife to rush through the dinner she has prepared in the hot kitchen. Many a mother must feel sad when a particularly choice combination is tossed into the stomach of the family.

Deliberation in eating is largely a matter of habit. Too often "gobbling" the food is the result of bad training. The children must be taught to eat as they should.

Let no one forget that digestion begins in the mouth. Much of what we eat is starchy in its nature. To care for starch properly there should be mixed with it a quantity of saliva. To guarantee this mixture there must be thorough chewing.

Really it is a grave mistake to bolt the food. The practice leads to indigestion.

Unconsciously I used the correct words "grave mistake." Carlyle, you will recall, said: "Man digs his grave with his teeth." Bad eating habits have filled many graves.

She Suffers for Believing Some Foolish Gossip

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

BEATRICE FAIRFAX will gladly answer questions regarding heart and home problems. Address her in care of the Boston American. Write on one side of the paper only. If you wish a personal answer enclose self-addressed, stamped envelope. Otherwise, questions of interest will be answered through her daily columns.

Miss Fairfax broadcasts over Station WLEX every evening except Saturday and Sunday at 6.35 p. m.

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

While I do not care for a certain young man beyond a feeling of friendship, I do not wish to lose that. He cares (or did care) quite a bit for me, or so his actions seemed to indicate. I very foolishly believed some gossip concerning his "supposed engagement" with another girl. Now, dear Miss Fairfax, this young man became very angry and said things. He said I should have had more faith in him. I am exceedingly sorry for this blunder and have apologized profusely, but to no end. Shall I do anything further toward regaining his friendship, or shall I just let matters slide naturally?

PUZZLED.

Beatrice Fairfax

Dear Puzzled: As you say, it's better to let matters "slide naturally." If you have "apologized profusely," there is really nothing more to be done. Don't be so humble. As a disinterested person, I don't see why the young man should get on his high horse just because you repeated some idle gossip about his reported engagement. You are not engaged to him, so he was quite at liberty to be engaged to someone else. It looks to me as if he were either deficient in a sense of humor or looking for some excuse to quarrel.

A Man's World

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am 20 and going with a boy 22 for two years and am engaged to him. He has a very good character and is very good to me when I am with him and gives me everything. He tells me he loves me, but I don't believe him because when he is to call me up he forgets and when he does and asks when he can see me and I tell him a night when I can go, if he has a date with his boy friend for that night he will not break it for me. As I do not go with girl friends and am engaged I have to stay home. What do you advise me to do?

WONDERING.

Dear Wondering—Alas, dear Wondering, it's a man's world in spite of votes for women. If you're going to get on with men you've to accept them as they are, otherwise leave them be. I can't see why any [illegible] independent American [illegible] stand for such arbitrary treatment from any fellow [illegible] do as many of my letters [illegible] me. "Therefore, in view of the foregoing it is our opinion that the present low prices offer an unusually favorable opportunity to purchase for investment the securities of the standard corporations."

This compares with stocks of 33,[illegible] barrels held by refineries representing 94.7 per cent of the country's refining capacity in the week ended Nov. 9, 1929.

Tire Shipments in Lead Over Output

Shipments of auto tires for the first nine months of this year exceeded production by 4.8 per cent as compared with a 1 per cent excess of shipments over production during the same period of 1929. Shipments of pneumatic casings for the month of September amounted to 4,435,176 as compared with [illegible] in August [illegible] 1929.

That Selling in Liggett & Myers

Many in the financial district have been seeking a reason for the decline in Liggett & Myers. Interests in the company state there has been no change internally to account for some of the persistent selling recently. It was learned, however, that a block of stock was forced on the market and this liquidation came when the general market was weak. Naturally, it had considerable influence. The belief is expressed that this forced selling is about over.

Plentiful Supply of Reynolds Tobacco

Inability of Reynolds Tobacco to hold its price even in periods of firmness elsewhere confirms the general impression that a plentiful supply of the stock is available.

Earnings Report Comparisons Made

| | Since Oct 1 | Additions Ystday |
|---|---|---|
| Increased earnings | 166 | 4 |
| Decreased earnings | 262 | 8 |
| Unchanged dividends | 378 | 6 |
| Increased dividends | 38 | 2 |
| Decreased dividends | 19 | 1 |
| Omitted dividends | 35 | .. |

Tobacco Stocks' Earnings Larger

Because of forced or discouraged selling, tobacco stocks have been hard hit with the others notwithstanding that many companies represented, including American Tobacco and Liggett & Myers, will show earnings for 1930 in excess of 1929. It is said the latter will earn [illegible] to $5 a share. Earnings of American Tobacco are estimated at $8.50 a share.

Fox Earnings Are Up, Dividend Safe

President Clarke of Fox Film Corp., said:

"Fox earnings are running ahead of last year, and the regular $4 dividend will continue to be paid."

Young Spring Is Expected to Pay

President L. A. Young of L. A. Young Spring & Wire Co. states he expects directors the latter part of the month to declare the regular quarterly dividend of 75 cents. He further said earnings for October and 15 days of November were satisfactory and larger than anticipated.

A. T. T. Attacked by Bear Group

Powerful bear interests launched a vicious "bear campaign" against American Telephone & Telegraph coincident with the circulation of reports that the stock was selling at a high ratio to earnings. Based on the indicated earnings for 1930, Telephone is selling at a ratio of approximately 16 times earnings. Nevertheless, it should be remembered that American Telephone has an unbroken dividend record and that at present levels it yields more than 4¾ per cent. In addition stockholders in the past have received valuable subscription rights annually which have materially increased the yield. Consequently, it is evident that important investment buying is taking place on the reactions.

Hudson Discounts Dividend Lowering

At its current level Hudson Motors is discounting not only lowering of its $3 dividend, but virtually is discounting complete omission of the payment. The company is strongly intrenched financially.

"Biscuit" Continues Under Pressure

National Biscuit apparently is one of the new favorites of the bear clique which is picking on stocks that are selling on a high ratio to earnings level. Aggressive bear selling was noticed in this issue due to the fact that the stock at present is selling for about 20 times the indicated earnings for the present year. Despite the bear selling, however, it was evident that slightly better support was encountered from banking interests. This buying was largely based on the fact that the company was able to show an increase in earnings during the first nine months of the year as compared with a year ago.

Nat. Power Meets Important Buying

Notwithstanding the general pessimism toward the public utility group, it has been evident that National Power & Light is again attracting important buying from interests close to the Electric Bond & Share group. This is the same character of buying that has taken place on previous dips to around the $30 level. Current accumulation in National Power & Light is largely attributable to the steady growth in earnings reported by the company. As a matter of fact, National Power & Light will be one of the few large utility systems to report an increase in per share earnings during the current year. Interests close to the management estimate earnings for 1930 at about $2.60 a share, as compared with $2.17 a share in the preceding year. On this basis, National Power sells for less than 13 times indicated 1930 earnings.

Park & Tilford's Profit Is $154,945

Park & Tilford, Inc., reports for nine months ended September 30 net profit of $154,945 after charges, federal taxes, etc., equal to 71 cents a share on the 218,264 shares. For the first nine months of 1929 the company reported a profit of $929,764 after depreciation, but before federal taxes. Net loss for the September quarter was $11,126, against profit of $281,602 before federal taxes in the third quarter of 1929.

Electric Bond Is in Good Position

Electric Bond & Shares Company is in the same strong current position characteristic of it for many years. Total current assets exceed $86,000,000, approximately 19 times current liabilities. About $45,000,000 of current assets, or more than half, is in cash and call loans.

Bond & Share now owns more than 19 per cent of common stock of American Gas & Electric, against 17 per cent at end of June and 16 per cent December 31, 1929. Holdings of American Power & Light Company have increased to 31 per cent from 30 per cent at end of June. In Electric Power & Light Corporation holdings increased to 32 per cent from 30 per cent June 30. Bond & Share now owns about 85 per cent of the option warrants of that company. Holdings of National Power & Light have also undergone an increase, being about 45 per cent of common, against 41 per cent June 30 and 40 per cent December 31. Electric Bond & Share now has majority control of American & Foreign Power, Inc., through ownership of more than 53 per cent of the common.

Outright Buying of Stocks Large

Outright purchases of stocks the past six weeks have exceeded $800,000,000 and probably can be conservatively estimated as in excess of $1,000,000,000. All evidence available points to outright investment buying in almost unprecedented volume, absorbing speculative and forced selling.

Brokers' loans declined $768,000,000 between September 24 and November 5. To pay off these loans somebody had to sell stocks and every seller had to find a buyer. The overwhelming majority of stock purchased was fully paid for in cash. A small part was purchased with funds borrowed from banks. Best available figures indicate purchases through bank borrowed funds in this period totaled $125,000,000 in New York city and around $150,000,000 in 101 leading cities.

Dividend Actions Afforded Review

Corporation directors passed 637 dividends and decreased 297 in the first ten months of 1930 as compared with 156 passed and 48 decreased in the similar period of 1929, according to the Standard Statistics Company of New York. Detailed figures covering dividend changes for October and the ten months to October 31, follows:

NO WAGES CUT BY GENERAL MOTORS

General Motors Corporation, one of the largest industrial organizations in the world, has no intention of [illegible] other reductions or wages, according to Alfred P. Sloan Jr., president, who stated it was his hope that no readjustment of that character would be necessary.

A. P. Sloan, Jr.

In pointing out the reasons for maintaining wages and salaries and the economic benefits to be derived from such action Mr. Sloan said in part:

"To my mind, it is important for industry to appreciate the fact that the prosperity of the United States is founded on a high wage scale. To reduce the wage scale would, in my judgment, not only delay the return of more normal times, but would put a limit, and an unnecessary limit, on the future prosperity of the country.

"The broader the margin that exists between the daily wage and the necessities of life, the more the individual has available to purchase additional products and enjoy and profit by his leisure hours. This development of purchasing power creates wealth which in turn reacts and reacts throughout our whole industrial situation."

COVERING PUTS CURB HIGHER

New York, Nov. 12.—Heavy short covering in the final hour of an erratic session on the curb market today cancelled most of the losses sustained earlier in the day, and carried the list as a whole to generally higher levels.

The utility group bounded up sharply as the bears were thrown into retreat with the spread between the high and low prices of the day five points and more.

Among the issues which showed to particular advantage were Northern States Power, Tampa Electric, Electric Bond & Share, American Gas & Electric, American & Foreign Power warrants, American Superpower, Consolidated Gas of Baltimore, Middle West Utilities, Electric Power & Light warrants and Niagara Hudson Power.

Cities Service recovered all of its early loss and edged up fractionally higher.

Oils ruled sluggish throughout the day, and with the exception of a moderate uptirn in Indian Territory A, leading petroleum issues, including Gulf, Humble, Standard of Indiana and Vacuum, settled at a better price range.

OFFER STAPLES STOCK RIGHTS

H. F. Staples & Co. Inc., manufacturers of floor maintenance machinery and products, of Medford, announce the declaration of a cash dividend of 25 cents per share for the quarter payable to common stock of record Nov. 5, 1930. Directors also voted to offer stockholders the right to subscribe for one share of common stock at $14.50 per share for every two shares held. These rights are offered to stock of record Nov. 5 and expire Dec. 1, 1930.

In its report to stockholders the company states that the first order for their newly-developed automatic household waxing machine has been received, amounting to 10,000 machines, from a New England direct selling organization and that it expects to book orders for around 200,000 machines during the first year.

A special floor polishing compound, entirely different from anything now on the market, has also been developed for this machine and packed in a container which attaches directly to the machine, an exclusive feature which prevents any other manufacturer's product being used in the machine for "refill" purpose.

President C. P. Johnson of the company states that the company's business so far this year is running approximately 65 per cent ahead of last year. He says the company is now using its surplus funds to increase the raw material inventory while prices are now from 30 per cent to 40 per cent below normal levels.

Cotton Consuming for Month Gains

Copper Is Advanced to 10 Cents a Pound

New York, Nov. 12 (AP)—Marking the first upturn in copper prices in several months, domestic copper was sold in substantial volume today at 10 cents, an increase of ½ cent. It was expected that a similar advance in the foreign price would be made within the next day.

It was reported that a considerably larger tonnage that has been bid for at the 10-cent price has been refused.

Fair tonnages of finished products have been booked by Fabricators, but they are understood to have refused to accept a large volume at that figure, anticipating a further advance in copper prices.

The price of finished products throughout the country have been advanced a cent a pound. Anaconda Copper Wire and Cable Co. announced it had advanced prices on bare wire ½ cent a pound and on weatherproof wire ⅝ of a cent.

Officials said the demand was so large that they have withdrawn from the market. The American Brass Co. has advanced the price of brass ⅛ cent a pound to the equivalent of 10 cents for copper.

Announcement of the advance in copper prices was greeted by the industry as the most encouraging sign that has developed in a year that brought the lowest price level in more than 30 years. After holding steady at 18⅛ cents a pound for more than a year, copper producers initiated a series of cuts commencing last spring which carried the price down to 9½ cents.

The price advance came at a time when the American copper industry has joined with other countries in an effort to curtail production to a figure comparable with the present demand.

While large surplus stocks overhang the market, it was understood the copper producers felt that a constructive step toward stabilizing the industry could be taken through curtailment of world production to about 20,000 tons of copper a month.

Some question has arisen whether such action would conflict with the Sherman anti-trust act, and it was understood that an official opinion would be sought in Washington.

NEW LOWS ARE SET IN BOSTON DEALINGS

Before an afternoon rally set in on the Boston Stock Exchange today, many issues sold at new 1930 lows. Edison Electric led the decline with a drop of 7 points to a fresh low.

Among the shares selling in new low territory were United Shoe, Southern Surety, Kreuger & Toll, Penn R. R., United Founders, American Telephone, Continental Securities and General Electric.

Point gains were recorded for Boston & Albany, Nash and Shawmut. Railway Light & Security dipped 2 points to a new low.

Gillette eased fractionally and New England Telephone was 1½.

Kidder Peabody & Co. urge an optimistic viewpoint on the outlook in expressing their confidence that the present is not the time for pessimism. They point out that a business readjustment is nothing new or alarming, and that the events of the past year have merely followed precedent. They say:

"In 1921 we advised: 'The bargain counter for securities is now open.' A business depression was in full swing, money was scarce. Even the bonds of some of our leading corporations were selling to yield over 7 per cent. Corporate earning power had vanished. The outlook seemed hopeless.

"In 1928 we advised caution. The country was aproaching the crest of a speculative wave, the consequences of which are familiar to everyone.

"Now we advise confidence. Events during the past year have merely followed precedent. A business readjustment is nothing new or alarming. It is the payment of the premium which insures the nation's steady growth against unsound expansion. Without forecasting the action of the stock market, we feel confident that this is not the time for pessimism."

STATE STREET SIDELIGHTS

State Street interprets the announcement of the appointment of George Murnane, partner in Lee, Higginson & Co., to the directorate of the Marine Trust Co. of Buffalo, as the first step by the Marine Midland group in an expansion program which may include important foreign banking activities.

Regardless of the tremendous losses in the railroad section of the list a Boston broker urges extreme caution in making any commitments in the carriers.

Pipe lines, overland trucking, etc., are still a subject of controversy and it is as yet hard to get a definite line on how much revenue has been lost by the roads to various competitors. He believes, however, that some of these shares are now thoroughly sold out.

Many feel that the bear party has been extremely fortunate in its operations throughout the decline. It is contended that the news of the world has favored their operations just when it seemed decisive rallies were in the making.

Reported French and Italian liquidation is supposed to have supplied stock in the last few days for them to cover with when many observers felt their position was untenable. Other operators look toward the time when such conditions will have fathered a false sense of security among bear leaders.

Local unlisted security dealers feel that the prices prevailing for leading bank stocks are due more to sympathetic declines than to conditions in the banking field.

Earnings are admittedly under those of 1929, but above average in the opinion of one broker, who says that the majority of those companies covered the year's dividend requirements in the first nine months of 1930. He adds that current yields compare favorably with the return on high-grade bonds.

Irregularity Rules in Big Bond Market

New York, Nov. 12.—Irregularity ruled in the big bond market today. Strength of United States Governments stood out in contrast to the irregular trend of domestic corporate obligations.

The marked preference of investors for only the highest grade investments at the present time enabled Liberty 3½s and Treasury 3⅜s of 1943-47 to attain new highs for the year and the whole group maintained a firm tone.

Gen. Cable Places Million in Reserve

As of July 31, last, General Cable Co. transferred $1,000,000 from earned surplus to inventory reserve. During the quarter ended Sept. 30 the inventory reserve thus provided was used to the extent of $694,766 to absorb the loss due to the decline in the market price of copper taken up in sales during the quarter. Adjustment is reflected in the September quarterly report.

AFTERNOON RALLY FOLLOWS NEW WALL ST. SELLING

New York, Nov. 12—An afternoon rally, in which copper shares were prominent, followed further selling on the New York Stock Exchange today.

Copper has long been selling only fractionally over 9 cents a pound, and news that sales had been effected at 10 cents a pound today proved inspiring. This was especially true because it was the first advance in months.

RALLY IS VIGOROUS.

The rally became vigorous in the final period. There were recoveries of 1 to nine points from the earlier low levels recorded by American Can, American Telephone, Consolidated Gas, Westinghouse and others. The general level of prices was higher at the close.

Kennecott, Anaconda, American Smelting, Atchison and U. S. Steel were among issues marked up 2 to 4 points. Sales ran around the 3,500,000 mark.

Into the afternoon the market was quiet, but, save in a few prominent shares, it was unable to resist light selling pressure, and losses of 1 to 5 points were numerous.

The unexpected advance of ½ cent in copper to 10 cents a pound with reports that large producers were holding out for still higher prices, caused a rally in the copper shares.

Shares early declining 3 to 5 points to new lows included Union Pacific, Atchison, Missouri Pacific preferred, Radio preferred B, Penney, Lehigh Valley and American Tobacco B.

Shares selling off 2 to 4 included American Water Works, duPont, Air Reduction, American Can, Coca Cola, Consolidated Gas, General Electric, Radio, Westinghouse and Alleghany Corp.

DAY'S NEWS GOOD.

The day's industrial developments were largely cheering, after making due allowances for the normal seasonal trends at this time.

Freight car loadings as reported for the week ended Nov. 1, showed a decline of about 2½ per cent from the previous week, which was smaller than is expected for that period. That week's reduction for the past three years has averaged 5½ per cent.

The stiffening of copper prices came as a most pleasant surprise and was regarded in financial circles as a favorable augury in view of the fact that the decline in commodity prices has now run for 15 months, which is about equivalent to the length of the decline in the major periods of deflation of 1893 and 1921.

Wall St. has been disappointed in its hopes that commodity prices were scraping bottom several times since last June, but in the light of past history, its present hopes seemed to have some basis.

"Iron Age", reporting a decline in steel ingot production to 44 per cent of capacity from 48 per cent, says the trade is banking on an upturn in January.

"Precedent points to some measure of recovery at that time," asserts the review, "just as it offers little hope of a change in trend in the remaining weeks of 1930."

The recent effort to stabilize prices on plates, shapes and bars, says the survey added strength to the view that prices are finally scraping bottom and that a successful stand can be taken at present market levels in negotiating contracts for the next quarter.

The "Iron Age" composite prices for finished steel and pig iron are unchanged at 2.135 cents a pound and $16.29 a gross ton, respectively, but heavy melting scrap has receded to $11.58, another new low.

EXTRAS ARE ORDERED

Directors of Eastman Kodak Company today declared the usual quarterly dividend of $1.25 a share on the common, in addition to an extra dividend of 75 cents, the same as in previous quarters, payable January 2 to stock-holders of record November 29.

Directors of the United States Gypsum Company today declared an extra dividend of 50 cents a share on the common stock, in addition to the regular quarterly disbursements of 40 cents on the common and $1.75 on the preferred. All three dividends are payable December 31 to stock of record December 15.

The American Safety Razor Co. and subsidiaries reported today for the September quarter net earnings of $39,627, equal to $1.93 a share on 200,000 shares, against $397,119, or $1.74 a share on 228,112 shares, in the like quarter last year. Net for the first nine months this year was $1,095,618, equal to $5.48 a share, against $1,088,042, or $4.77 a share, in the like period of 1929. The statement said that earnings for the first nine months this year constituted the largest earnings for a like period since the company was organized.

ICE EARNINGS AT NEW PEAK

American Ice Co., of which the Boston Ice Co. is a subsidiary, will report for October the sixth consecutive monthly increase in earnings this year. Earnings for nine months constituted a new record for the period, and October earnings will raise 10 months' earnings to a new high for the period. Better earnings for October were in part from an increase in tonnage sold, but principally from higher prices this year.

In October, 1929, American Ice Co. reported profit of $399,062 after interest, but before depreciation and federal taxes, to bring earnings for 10 months of 1929 to $5,278,430. It is likely that profit for October this year will be about 10 per cent greater than a year ago, or roughly $440,000. Such earnings for October would raise profit for 10 months to about $5,470,000.

October earnings will further enhance possibility of reporting for the full year net in excess of the $3,431,124, or $4.22 a share, earned on the 600,000 common shares last year.

Former Governor to Discuss Unemployment Over NBC Chain at 9 O'Clock

An appeal for the unemployed will be made tonight by former Gov. Alfred E. Smith when he speaks over the network of the National Broadcasting Company. In Boston, WBZA will carry the address, which will be heard from 9 to 9:15 p. m.

The broadcast has been arranged in co-operation with the emergency employment committee, which is seeking to find 2,000,000 days' work at $3 a day for New York unemployed married men.

Principal welfare agencies of the city are represented by the committee, and these agencies have already secured employment for more than 2000 men throughout the five boroughs of Greater New York. It is hoped to increase this number to at least 10,000 within the next 30 days. The jobs are sought for heads of families without regard to race, color or creed, according to Seward Prosser, the head of the committee.

Although the talk which former Governor Smith will give is confined to the activities of New York, helpful hints will be offered and a general discussion of unemployment will be heard. Former Governor Smith is a member of the executive committee of this organization.

Popular Singer

BILLY HUGHES, vocalist, who will be heard tonight during the Camel Pleasure Hour program, over WBZ-WBZA at 9:30.

RADIO Personalities

The new type condenser microphones at the CBS studios resemble ash trays and are being used for that purpose . . . The REVELERS quartet, it seems to us are the perennial travelers. At present they are making a tour of the Middle West and Canada . . . The Musical Aviators Orchestra, heard over WNAC, are all licensed pilots, and the banjo player, FRED GUSS, plans to make a solo flight from Tokio to Dallas, Tex., next spring . . . During his years on the air, ROXY has never wondered where his next meal is coming from. He has received 500,000 letters inviting him to Sunday dinner . . . A listener writes FLOYD GIBBONS he has solved the problem of how to hear Gibbons and the Atwater Kent program, which are on the air at the same time Sunday nights. This listener purchased an extra set and tunes both on, stands midway between the sets and gets musical atmosphere to Floyd's talk . . . CBS is planning a ping-pong tournament among the artists . . . What's become of ALOIS HAVRILLA, NBC announcer? . . . BRAD BROWNE and AL LLEWELYN are the senior members of the CBS. Their etherial activities date back to the days when WABC was on the air three nights a week.

Waltham to Beautify Cemeteries for Jobs

Unemployed residents of Waltham will be put to work cleaning up and beautifying the city's two cemeteries, Mt. Feake and Grove Hill. As a part of its program to relieve unemployment, the city council passed an appropriation of $5000 for the work.

Dorchester Man in Suicide Attempt

The Brighton police report that Israel H. Jacobs, 35, of 48 Everett st., Dorchester, while visiting his father-in-law, Julius Friedenberg of 244 Warren st., Brighton, attempted to commit suicide by swallowing poison tablets. The reason for Jacobs' act was given as business troubles and poor health.

Concerning Radio

Edited by BILL WHIPPLE

A couple of days ago we reproduced in these columns a letter from a dissatisfied radio fan, who bewails the seeming fact that too many programs these days are similar; that is, tuning in on different stations one gets practically the same thing. Or at least it would seem that the various station program offerings have but little variety.

And that correspondent is multiplied many times in the great radio audience; folks who deplore the repetitious character of many programs.

Regarding just that situation one of the most alert and progressive program directors in the country says:

> "For five long years I have fought bitter battles against the advertising fallacy of 'follow the leader,' and I have begun to believe that I will be fighting the same battle 10 years from now."

This director—and all others—seems to be up against a universal human characteristic. One obvious aspect of it is the way in which women adopt styles. If short hair is decreed, all women wear their hair short, no matter how it suits or does not suit them; if long skirts are said to be correct, all women wear long skirts, regardless of how unbecoming. They follow the predominant mode as slavishly as lambs follow the bell-wether.

And the same apparently is true of otherwise canny and sensible advertising programmists. If a cowboy quartet is successful somewhere, everybody wants a cowboy quartet; if a gooey crooner makes a hit, they all want crooners of the identical gooeyness; if a novelty orchestra manages to draw favor, they follow with strings of novelty orchestras, all precisely alike. There is a great hue and cry amongst those buying air time for "something different," yet most of them lack the courage to accept a novel broadcast when it is presented to them.

Sometimes we have felt that if imitations were a statutory offense, nine-tenths of radio advertisers would be facing criminal prosecutions.

Shipwreck in Public Gardens

"A PUBLIC GARDEN SHIP WRECKED!"
"WAL— I SWAN!"

That sounds like somebody was spoofing. But if you are skeptical about it just tune in this afternoon at 5:00 o'clock, when "Uncle Bill and the Twins" are having their little get-to-gether up at WBZA—and learn how come. Although the broadcast was originally intended for the kids we understand the grownups get a kick from it; Uncle Bill certainly is a cheerful old liar.

And, lest you forget, let us remind you that Warner Wolcott has a very interesting request poem for you, which he is going to recite over WLEX this evening at 6:30 during the "Poem Period" in the Evening American studio.

Charles L. H. Wagner, of 470 Stuart st., has addressed to us the following:

Dear Sir: Would it be possible for me to get a brief notice relative to my resumption of weekly radio programs, beginning next Friday at WHDH? You may recall that I was one of the pioneer broadcasters in the field, appearing originally on WGI as the Radio Poet.

Certainly, old timer, glad to accommodate. Anybody who can survive all these years of facing microphones without becoming a subject for a certain institution, deserves the best we've got.

After a prolonged slumber, "Syncopated History," Henry Burbig's brain child, returns to the air, this time under the sponsorship of Scott Furriers. The program will be heard over WNAC at 8:30 tonight. Besides the intriguing dialect of Mr. Burbig, a dance orchestra under the leadership of Nat Brusiloff will serve up snappy rhythms.

Presentations of Beethoven's Ninth Symphony will take place tonight from the CBS studios and will be heard locally over WNAC from 10 to 11. Howard Barlow will direct the entire work and soloists are Adele Vasa, Barbara Maurel, Theo Karle and Crane Calder. The Ninth was Beethoven's last symphony and was written while the composer was totally deaf. He never heard the work which marks the peak of his genius.

"Twentieth Century Thrift," is the subject of a talk by Victor A. Lersner, president of the Bowery Savings Bank of New York, which will be heard on the Halsey-Stuart program on WEEI at 9 tonight. Lersner will trace the early history of savings and saving institutions and show how the public attitude toward thrift has changed in recent years.

Eddie Borden, nut comedian of stage and screen, will cavort with great gusto and tremendous waves of silliness over the WLEX microphone at 6:30 tonight on the Boston Evening American Feature period. Eddie, who is appearing at the Keith-Albee Theater this week, has no definite plan in view as to what he will do before the mike, but that matters little to him.

BRISTOL HEADS ADVERTISERS

Washington, Nov. 12 (INS)—The concluding sessions of the three-day convention of the Association of National Advertisers was held today and in the afternoon the Department of Commerce kept open house for the delegates.

Lee H. Bristol of the Bristol-Myers Co., of New York, is the new president, succeeding Bernard Lichtenberg, of the Alexander Hamilton Institute.

Stuart Peabody of the Borden Co. of New York was elected to succeed Bristol as ranking vice-president. Other officers re-elected were:

W. A. Grove of the Edison Electric Appliance Co., and P. J. Keily of the B. F. Goodrich Rubber Co., vice-presidents; Albert E. Haase, managing director and secretary-treasurer, and S. McMillan and A. W. Lehman, assistant managing directors.

Turner Jones of the Coca Cola Co. and Cliff Knoble of the Chrysler Corporation, were elected to the board of directors.

DOCTORS URGED TO CUT FEES

New York, Nov. 12 (AP)—Dr. Shirley W. Wynne, New York City health commissioner, was on record today with the assertion that the medical profession must give public qualified treatment at reasonable price or face the possibility of State regulation.

He told a conference of public health and nursing service board members from six States last night that the medical profession must purge itself of members who are "as bad as any of the quacks and charlatans outside" if it is to retain public confidence. He charged that the great mass of the "white-collared" class receive "poor medical service at an exorbitant cost."

"The solution of the problem lies either with the doctors organizing among themselves to supply qualified service at a fixed fee, or a public demand for State medicine," said Dr. Wynne. "Our people need and want efficient medical assistance at prices within their means, and they do not always get it."

Dry Terrors Subsiding

We're Not Going to the Bow-Wows

Now that the froth has subsided and the excitement waned, it would seem that the good old State of Massachusetts is not going to the demnition bow-wows after all because of repeal of the Baby Volstead Act.

There has not been nor will there be any resultant crime wave. Nor has the corner saloon mushroomed over night to displace the meat market and the grocery store.

The people are wise in their collective instinct and judgment. They knew, if hysterical politicians did not, that the repeal of the Volstead law here in Massachusetts afforded them an opportunity to express their sentiment for or against prohibition and that it contained no contingency or possibility whatever of a surrender to crime. If it had, the majority would have been overwhelmingly for the law, instead of the 275,000 majority against it.

This repeal will take place officially on December 4, thirty days after the judgment of the people was expressed. But sufficient time has already elapsed for the evil forces of crime to have established themselves, if repeal would have permitted it.

Citizens are going about their normal tasks as usual. They have manifested their disgust at prohibition and expect the public servants to create a new and real order of temperance at the earliest opportunity. But they, themselves, having performed their obligation as voters at the polls, are now more concerned in the immediate task of earning a livelihood for themselves and their families.

Meanwhile, the forces that are paid to maintain law and order had better cease their wailings and alibis for all time, and devote such intelligence as they may have to the facts in the situation. The federal laws exist. The federal courts exist. Also, there is an abundance of State law under which arrests and successful prosecutions can be made of the arrogant bootleggers who violated them in the past and relied upon the incompetence or corruptibility of the enforcing officers for their protection.

The mandate of the voters of Massachusetts was for these agencies to put their own houses in order, to install honesty and decency in the place of graft and slothfulness, until a new system that will of itself promote true temperance is inaugurated.

Behind the 'Red' Menace

A Suggestion to the Fish Committee

Congressman Hamilton Fish and his committee of Red hunters came to Boston, held a series of public hearings and departed with one outstanding fact which may or may not have impressed them. It is that the Communist Party has been able to enroll but 250 members in an industrial State of 4,000,000 population which has experienced all the tribulations and radical-making propensities of unemployment.

Those who have witnessed the "radical demonstrations" in Boston and its suburbs the past few years HAVE BEEN IMPRESSED by a conspicuous fact. This fact is that these little mobs have been composed largely of immature boys and girls whose heads have been filled with the silly idea of obtaining sensational, personal publicity for themselves.

Mr. Fish and his committee would win some distinction for themselves and render a real service to their country if they would search out the motives and the money which mould these pliable young men and women to their purposes.

Mr. Fish would find these wellsprings closer to home than Russia. If he wanted actual information he would have summonsed Mr. Henry Dennison and other fine Massachusetts characters who for years have been attempting to curb certain private detective agencies and other "agents of provocation" who fatten on these efforts to scare timid employers and to provoke hostility between capital and labor.

Cheer From Mr. Schwab

Quincy Rejoices Over Steel Chief's Promise

Charles M. Schwab and other officials of the Bethlehem Steel Company find the Quincy shipyards working at capacity. Quincy, with 70,000 people, has less than 400 idle. It shines like a bright star upon a jaded world, distressed by economic uncertainty.

Schwab, an optimist, gives the workmen the assurance there will be no layoffs this Winter. Thanks to the government, and its Jones-White shipping act, the merchant marine is being revived. A marine can't be built without labor and material. So, here is a wide ray of hope.

Schwab preaches the philosophy of optimism. But we must remember to the everlasting credit of President Farrell that it was Farrell who declared the steel industry MUST NOT take advantage of the labor surplus in the time of unemployment to deflate the wages of the workers.

IT'S AN OLD FOOLISH CUSTOM -:-

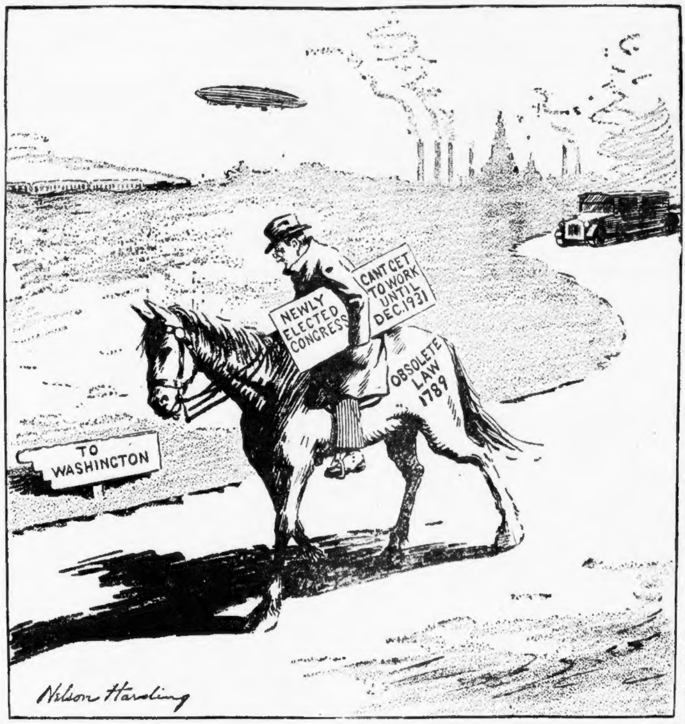
By NELSON HARDING



It's Nineteen Thirty, and we think
We live in a progressive age,
But in the method pictured here
We're only in the horseback stage.

In other ways we're moving fast,
Yet in this matter we are slow,
The Congress we elect today
Won't meet until a year or so.

Listen, World! Lepers

By ELSIE ROBINSON

We Don't Wanna Be Cured

IT'S ONE thing to cure a man of being a leper—

But quite another to cure him of wanting to be one.

Even leprosy has its points, as the United States Public Health Service is discovering. Down in Carville, La., they have a leper colony. Leper colonies, thank God, are not the tragic places they once were. Lepers can be cured.

Elsie Robinson

They cure them in Carville. But the leper doesn't always consider it a favor! One discharged patient has paid his way back twice in the hope of being readmitted, although he's no longer sick. For one gets free board and a lot of attention in a leper colony. And a perfect alibi for any cussedness. But out in the work-a-day world, well men consume their own smoke. So back come the lepers to Carville!

Queer? Not so queer as one might think. We're all like that. Few of us are lepers, but we all have some sort of plaster on our necks. Plasters of fear. Plasters of grief. Plasters of hate. And the mix-ups that come from those conditions. Domestic jams.

Business snarls. Unpopularity. Unemployment. Loneliness, bitterness, weariness of soul. All of us have plasters that shut us out as surely from the free and full life as the leper's diseased flesh shuts him.

And, to hear us talk, a free and full life is the best thing we want. If only we could have Our Chance! If only we had a little more education so we could get a better job . . . if only we could make our relatives treat us decently . . . if we were rid of our fear and loneliness, our sensitiveness and bad temper . . . then we'd show 'em!

And, of course, all these things are possible. Others have freed themselves from handicaps—so can we. But do we really want to be free?

Think of the work it would mean to get that education, for instance. Think of the fun we'd have to give up—digging in on some old correspondence course instead of going over to Bill's for a little poker, or listening to the radio.

Think of the self-control it would take to get the family into line. Easy enough to talk about putting your feet down, but when it comes to putting it . . . that's different!

And suppose we did get all fixed up. And were perfectly free and independent, whom could we blame for our mistakes?

Lepers can always blame their shortcomings on their leprosy. That's why some of them want to go back and be lepers, even after they're cured. And we can always hang ours on our families, or the boss, or our lack of equipment. But suppose those handicaps were removed; what would happen to our alibis?

We could no longer say we inherited our bad temper from Grampa . . . or blame our unpopularity on Aunt Min . . . or talk about the record we'd have made if Dad had let us finish Hi—No, we'd have to take the blame ourselves, straight on the old jaw—horrid thought! And we'd have to show results . . . much bigger results than the fellows who were still carrying plasters. For, being free, we'd have no excuse for failure—

Freedom—the more we think about it, the more expensive it seems. And so, though we still clamor loudly for Liberty, just try and jar us loose from our plasters! We know when we're well off!

New York Day by Day

By O. O. McINTYRE

"The Unloved Romanticists"

NEW YORK, Nov. 12—O. Henry called them "the unloved romanticists." They are a city's vast army of shabbily genteel dreamers of romance chained to high stools, dark shipping rooms and other inconspicuous posts. They fill hall bed-rooms, up many flights and down at the end of the hall.

They are devotees of love-lorn columns and two-penny thrills of the "Millionaire Love Nest" headlines in tabloids. Respectable, clean living, they have clutched at success, missed and made the best of a rather fusty fate. In theaters, they are the last of the gallery gods.

Almost every one of them can reel off the complete history of every screen idol. When a Hollywood star stumbles they are the defenders who rush avidly to defense in movie magazines and movie columns. They will stand in the wind and rain at cinema openings.

When the reigning "America's sweetheart" trips out of a platinum limousine they gasp with admiration and will remain on the curbs with eyes ever shining and fervid until she departs.

The men are the type who leave boarding houses every morning and return every evening with the regularity of a clock tick. They are sticklers for over-shoes, umbrellas, vest pocket pencil clips and ride-the-pony lunch rooms. Outwardly prosaic, inwardly they foment with stuff of glamorous dreams.

The ladies are quietly dressed and suffocatingly sedate and in offices and workroom essay high in efficiency. It is difficult to imagine them constanly indulging roseate dreams. Yet they form the bulk of the audiences that determine the five figured salaries of the Conrad Nagels.

It is axiomatic "the unloved romanticists" seldom marry. Nor do they whimper over their isolation. All they want is their dreams. For them the fair finger of romance is always beckoning through the gloom and pointing only to the illusive mirage. Or something.

* * *

The distinctly vexatious manners of theater box office men has mellowed. One no stifles an urge to reach in and tweak their beazers. They look you in the eye instead of making you wait while they tell the telephone girl about the party they were on last night. Ticket sellers long overlooked a big bet in expressing discourtesy. Few jobs offer such promising contacts with people worth while. George White is the politest box office man in town and doesn't have to be.

* * *

On lower Fourth avenue are bookstalls remindful of those sauntering haunts in the sunshine of Left Bank quays. Ponderously dilapidated tomes, along with slender volumes, are racked and sold for prices ranging from 10 to 35 cents. Often one comes upon some autographed treasure as I did at dusk yesterday—a copy of "White Light Nights," by O. O. McIntyre, inscribed to a faithful Ritz bell boy six years ago and now offered at 15 cents. Elderly gentlemen constantly prowl around the stalls, furtively sneaking a page here and there from the classics.

* * *

Sunday morning flower sellers roaming Delancey street, the East Side 5th avenue, also offer an old world touch. They sell lapel bouquets to young swains who go "girling" on the Sabbath. Swains suggesting escaped comedians from the Burgomeister.

Delancey street kosher cafes bristle with activity, too, Sunday evenings. The late Will Hogg used to take me there for Sunday dinner, forcing me to stand at a wall counter while he parked himself at a table—the table charge being five cents per person extra. How we gorged on gefelte fisch! And what belly laughs!

A Delancey street delicacy not procurable uptown is a huge dill pickle soaked in brine and with that certain aroma of garlic only the Ghetto bestows. Sliced on white bread and washed down with the East Side tipple celery beer it becomes as tasty as a set of crisp chittlins on a frosty morning.

Politics and the Police

Commissionership Not a Political Plum

Politics, inside and outside the department, was the most destructive element in breaking down the efficiency and honesty of Boston's police force.

It was politics in its meanest form, with the inevitable grafting, disorganization and inefficiency that sprung from it, that brought the department to the disgraceful state of the past few years.

The Garrett case was the perfect fruit of the alliance of politics and the underworld, with the police department the tool of both.

It was only when politics was forced to take its ugly hand off the control of the department a few months ago that sanity and honesty could begin to be restored. An inefficient police commissioner was removed. A courageous, honest and proven organizer, Eugene C. Hultman, was put in command by Gov. Allen.

The appointment has redounded to the credit of the governor and to the immense benefit of the city and State. Faced by a tremendous task, Commissioner Hultman has already brought about a complete new picture in the department.

Morale and efficiency are being restored. The incompetent and dishonest are being weeded out. Officers and men are learning that their future depends entirely upon their own energy and ability. They already have learned that political pull and protection are dead letters. Criminals of all sorts, the bootleggers, drug pedlars, and arsonists quickly learned they need expect no mercy from Mr. Hultman, either because of friendship with the rank and file of the department, or through orders from the political higherups who misruled and degraded the department for so many years.

The Boston Evening American is interested in Mr. Hultman as a vital force in the restoration of decency and respect for the law in Boston.

It suggests that any efforts to play politics with the commissioner's job, to replace him with a "deserving" politician, will meet with a sharp rebuke from Governor-elect Ely and from every public-spirited public official and citizen, whether Republican or Democrat.

The police commissionership is not a political job. It is a public trust and has no place in politics.

The hissing and booing which have marked police parades of recent years were replaced this year by spontaneous applause. The department and its officials won the nation's praise for the manner in which the Tercentenary and American Legion parades were handled.

We doubt that any sane person will want to take chances of being responsible for a return of the conditions which had their natural result in the hissing and booing.

Boston is in no temper to permit the injection of politics into the department. The memories of police affairs of recent years, with politics in the saddle, are too painful, too nauseating.

More Air Triumphs

Added Lessons as to Our Future Defense

A Massachusetts boy, Stanley Boynton of Lexington, with the pioneer spirit of his patriot ancestors, clips eight hours off the junior flight record from the Atlantic to the Pacific and return. He achieves in twenty hours a trip that took the Forty-Niners months of endurance and privation to accomplish.

Meanwhile, Frank Hawks flies from Cuba to New York in less than nine hours, a normal working day.

Those who recall the anxious days and nights of the Spanish war when the battleship Oregon made her hazardous and venturesome voyage from the Pacific to join the battlefleet in Cuban waters will derive from these epochal flights a lesson that might prove less effective to the younger generation.

Within a day an army of fast planes loaded with dynamite and depth bombs could be transported across the breadth of this Nation to protect an unguarded and vital spot from sudden attack. The future defense of the country is in the air. The people know it. And all the prejudiced advice to the contrary from the good old sea-dogs still wedded in sentiment to the cumbersome battleships cannot wean them from that conviction.

Remember the 'Sallies'

Salvation Army Needs Your Help

Charity appeals may constitute a drain upon the generosity of our people this year. But there is one organization that should not be overlooked by those of fine impulse. It is the Salvation Army, whose unremitting work and sacrifice in the war would alone commend it to our confidence for all time.

Demands upon the Salvation Army have multiplied this year. The emergency food station opened by it at Washington and Brookline Streets in the South End will serve as many free meals in this month of November as during the entire year 1929.

This organization is engaged in manifold works of benevolence and it is deserving of all the help that the good people of Boston can afford.
